

Reds Challenge Allied Air Power

MIG's Fly 110 Miles South Of Yalu As U.S. Army Drives Ahead

TOKYO (UP)—The Communists mounted their largest air attack of the Korean war today as the U.S. 8th Army started a two-pronged drive on the eastern anchor of the Reds' "iron triangle" build-up area in central Korea.

Communist jets mounted their greatest challenge to American air supremacy over Korea, sweeping 110 miles south of the Manchurian border to battle U.S. bombers and fighters.

The effort cost the Reds three planes, two of them shot down over Pyongyang, the Red capital, and revived speculation that the Communists may be planning to throw strong air forces into Korea to support their battered armies.

Truman Steps Into Dispute On Iran Oil

Urges Mossadegh To Parley With Britain

TEHRAN (AP)—President Truman intervened personally today in Iran's oil crisis. He sent a letter to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh urging that negotiations be instituted with Britain for settlement of the present "explosive" situation.

(Reuters reported from London that Truman also sent a personal message to Iran to Prime Minister Attlee.)

Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison of Britain offered on May 19 to send a high diplomatic mission to negotiate all outstanding differences between Iran and Britain—mainly the problems arising from Iran's insistence upon nationalizing her oil resources, including the big Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

PREMIER AILING

Truman's letter was delivered by U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady at Premier Mossadegh's home this morning. Mossadegh is reported to be sick in bed with a fever.

Informants in Tehran said Truman's note apparently was inspired in Washington from the State Department and not by suggestions from diplomats on the scene. This seems to emphasize the importance Truman attaches to the oil situation. An earlier U.S. statement said the crisis is a threat to the unity of the whole free world.

Truman's note is reported to have urged negotiations within the principles of nationalization. Nationalization has been made law in Iran but is not yet effective. Iran has shown no disposition up to now even to talk about negotiating.

Today, however, reports circulated that Premier Mossadegh had summoned an emergency session of his cabinet after meeting Grady. These reports said he would read Truman's letter to a special session of Parliament tomorrow.

Reds Deport Bishop

HONG KONG (AP)—The Chinese Communist news agency said today that Roman Catholic Bishop Jean De Vienne, one of the highest ranking churchmen in North China, had been deported by Communists at Tientsin.

The Reds said he had "confessed" to many reactionary activities.

FOREST FIRE THREAT REMOVED

Wind Changes, Rain Falls After Quebec Villagers Kneel In Prayer

LA REINE, Ont. (CP)—Men, women and children knelt and prayed today—and finally the winds changed and the rains came.

A fierce forest fire only 15 miles to the west had gnawed steadily towards their small Quebec village.

A pall of smoke hung over La Reine as most of the 1,350 residents flocked to morning mass.

The air battle swirled within 90 miles of the fighting front, where United Nations ground forces hammered out gain up to two and a half miles.

An 8th Army communique and front dispatches reported these developments in the ground fighting:

DRIVE UP HIGHWAY

East coast: South Korean forces drove up the coastal highway to a point 30 miles north of the 38th parallel.

East-central front: U.S. tanks pushed back into Yangju at the eastern end of the Hwachon reservoir, seven miles north of the parallel without opposition. Other American units captured two important hills northeast of the town.

West-central front: Allied spearheads advanced 1,000 to 4,000 yards against light opposition. One column drove within nine miles of Chonwon, western anchor of the Communist "iron triangle."

Western front: U.N. troops seized a new bridgehead across the Imjin River above Seoul and just south of the 38th parallel.

GUNNER GETS KILL

Communist jet planes made their deepest penetration of Korea just before noon. F-86 sabres shot down two of them and the rear gunner of a Superfortress bagged a third.

Two B-29's were damaged, but returned safely to base. The American F-86's were not hit.

However, three American fighters—an F-84 Thunderjet, an F-80 Shooting Star and an F-51 Mustang—were lost in other raids during the day and two more Communist jets were damaged in a dogfight just south of the Manchurian border.

The air battles raised the two-day toll of Communist jets to six destroyed and four damaged. The day's main air fight began when 25 Russian-built MIG-15 jets pounced on four B-29's just as the big bombers swung into a bomb run against a railroad bridge at Sinanju, 70 miles south-east of the Yalu River-Manchurian frontier.

8-Foot Drifts Block Pass

HELENA, Mont. (UP)—Eight-foot snowdrifts blocked Rogers Pass in the continental divide north of Helena today as snow, sleet, rain and fog prevailed throughout Montana.

Snow flurries swirled along the hills behind the state capitol here. Northwest Airlines planes were grounded at Miles City because Billings airport reported "no ceiling, visibility an eighth of a mile."

Ranchers in parched central Montana were more than pleased with what they called an "ideal precipitation." They said "a million dollars worth of snow" fell on their lands.

State Secretary Faces Republican Interrogators

Seated across table from Secretary of State Dean Acheson (right) in inquiry into dismissal of Gen. MacArthur today in Washington are Sen. William F. Knowland (Calif.), and Harry P. Cain (head turned), both Republicans and severe critics of administration Korean policies. This was Acheson's first appearance to testify before Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees. (AP Wirephoto.)

Acheson Battles Senate Probe On Publication Of Formosa Document

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson fought today to prevent publication of an official document in which his department discounted the importance of Formosa. Senators investigating Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster got into a long wrangle over whether to overlook him.

The argument blazed on so long their meeting was recessed at 12:13 p.m. without a vote on the issue. Senators indicated a vote would be taken later today. Acheson appeared before the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee at 10:05 a.m. prepared to defend Far Eastern policies which culminated in the "limited war" now being fought in Korea.

But the Secretary had barely got out the words "So help me God" in response to the witness' oath when committee members began quarrelling over whether to publish the confidential document of December, 1949, in which the State Department instructed foreign service members on Formosa policy.

Sen. Charles W. Tobey, R., N.H., reported on leaving the hearing room that the publication issue would be settled by a committee vote as was the issue, raised earlier in the hearings, over whether Gen. Omar Bradley should be required to tell what President Truman had said in private about MacArthur. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff was sustained in his refusal by a vote of 18 to 8.

The controversial Formosa document was first revealed to the world in a United Press dispatch from Tokyo on Jan. 3, 1950. The dispatch disclosed that the State Department had advised foreign service members that Formosa was likely to fall soon to the Chinese Reds. The document instructed them to sell the idea that the big coastal island was not important to U.S. security.

Despite the United Press dispatch, Acheson strongly opposed publication of the document's text, according to Senators who attended the session. Tobey said the Secretary held that "the best interest of the country would be served" by withholding the document. Tobey said he "would go along with that" and vote against publication.

Hospital Sweep Urged

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—A resolution calling for hospital sweepstakes to assist in meeting B.C. hospital insurance deficits will be put before the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island.

The resolution, sponsored by the Lake Shawinigan chamber, will be introduced at the June 13 convention at Campbell River.

The Government will be requested to "legalize the holding of sweeps or raffles, especially for the benefit of hospitals, with the ultimate aim of rectifying the financial chaos into which hospital insurance scheme has developed."

Electricians Ask 60c Hourly Boost

VANCOUVER (CP)—Pay boosts of 60 cents an hour are expected to be sought this year by nearly 1,000 electrical workers here.

The increase would bring the journeyman rate to $2.38 an hour.

The men, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (I.B.E.W.) are employed by the B.C. Electric Company, Hume and Rumble Ltd., and Peterson Electrical Construction Company Ltd.

3,000 Armed Police Guard Queen In Eire

Customs Houses Burned

BELFAST (CP)—The Queen and Princess Margaret drove in an open car through Belfast today along a route lined by thousands of police as well as cheering crowds.

Tight security precautions were in force because of threats from Irish Nationalists agitating for the union of all Ireland as a Republic.

The Queen and her daughter drove to a big farm and factory exhibition which is Northern Ireland's contribution to the Festival of Britain.

After visiting the exhibition, the Royal Visitors attended a civic luncheon at Belfast City Hall. Scotland Yard and local detectives screened the waitresses and guests.

KING STAYS HOME

The King stayed in London. Buckingham Palace announced that the King has developed inflammation of the lung.

As the Queen and her younger daughter stepped ashore from the cruiser Sheffield, police of County Armagh searched the countryside around Cross Ma Glen for demonstrators who early today burned down the Royal Customs House there.

The house, a large one-story building, burned to the ground along with boxes of customs records. Extremists burned down many of these houses in 1937 to protest a visit then by the King and Queen.

The demonstrators again were protesting the continued union of Northern Ireland with the Crown. They want to unite the six Northern Counties with the Republic of Ireland.

CROWDS ROPED OFF

In Belfast some 3,000 policemen, armed with pistols, were on guard to prevent incidents. Seven miles of rope were strung along the streets to keep back the crowds along the Royal route.

The Dublin headquarters of the Sinn Féin patriot organization flew its black flag today. Under it was this poster:

"The British conqueror still rules. The Royal visit means Irishmen failed."

Last week a hand grenade was thrown at the British embassy in Dublin. Leaflets tossed on the embassy steps threatened the lives of the King and Queen if they carried out the visit.

KING CONFINED AS LUNG INFLAMMATION DEVELOPS

LONDON (Reuters)—The King has developed inflammation of the lung, it was officially announced from Buckingham Palace today.

A bulletin signed by four doctors said: "The King has been confined to his room for the past week with an attack of influenza."

"There is now a small area of catarrhal inflammation in the lung, but the constitutional disturbance is slight."

Earlier this week the 55-year-old monarch canceled a visit to Northern Ireland due to start today. Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret arrived in Belfast today to fulfill his program.

The Duke of Gloucester, the King's brother, now is likely to greet King Haakon of Norway when he arrives Tuesday for an official visit.

Living Cost Increases—But At Decreased Pace

OTTAWA (CP)—The cost-of-living index in April made one of the smallest advances in recent months, climbing 0.2 points to a new high of 182.0 from 181.8, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

This 0.2-point advance in April compared with a 2.1-point climb in March and a 4.5-point increase in February—the highest monthly advance in history.

The index is estimated on 1935-39 prices equaling 100. The bureau noted that for the first time since last November the food sub-group, which holds the most powerful influence on the movements of the index, declined.

With Prices for butter, pork, oranges and cabbages down, the food sub-group dropped 3 points to 235.4 from 238.4. The drops offset price increases for eggs and beef.

40,000 Rebels Renew Attacks In Indo-China

TONKIN, Indo-China (Reuters)—Some 40,000 Viet Minh rebels renewed attacks today in the southwest of the French-held Tonkin Delta, the French army announced today.

The attacks came after a day's lull in a five-day battle in which the Communists had been trying to pry open the French defences in the delta.

Yesterday, French paratroops hurled Viet Minh attacks back into the mountains and recovered all ground lost in the first three days of the Communists' assault.

Arms captured from the insurgents included American, Japanese and French weapons.

Abitibi Boosts Price Of Newsprint $10 Per Ton

FROM CP DISPATCHES

The price of newsprint continued its upward trend again today.

At Toronto, the Abitibi Power and Paper Co. Ltd., announced a $10-a-ton increase bringing the New York price to $116 a ton and the Canadian price to $112.

"Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd. said it is 'considering an increase in price.'"

So far, no other company has announced an increase but in the past, prices of the various companies have reached a common level in the course of a few weeks.

Senate Approves Draft Age Cut

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate approved today the final version of a bill cutting the draft age from 19 to 18½ and setting up the framework of a universal military training program.

Only a house vote, scheduled for next Thursday, remains to send the bill to President Truman for signature.

Airline For North

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board today authorized Ellis Air Lines to establish regular passenger and cargo service between Ketchikan, Alaska, and Prince Rupert, B.C. The airline is a southeastern Alaska service.

Penhale Winnipeg Defence Director

WINNIPEG (CP)—Alderman J. Gurzon Harvey, chairman of the Civil Defence Committee, today announced that Maj.-Gen. M. H. S. Penhale has accepted the $7,500-a-year post of civil defence director for Greater Winnipeg.

Gen. Penhale accepted the position in a long-distance telephone conversation from Eastern Canada. Ald. Harvey said. He will take over his new post June 15.

Gen. Penhale was formerly officer commanding at Western Army Command at Edmonton and Prairie Command at Winnipeg.

Electricians Ask 60c Hourly Boost

VANCOUVER (CP)—Pay boosts of 60 cents an hour are expected to be sought this year by nearly 1,000 electrical workers here.

Costello Now Seems Certain Of Re-Election

DUBLIN, Ireland (UP)—Ireland faced the prospect tonight of another period of coalition government under Premier John A. Costello, leader of the Fine Gael Party.

Almost complete returns from Wednesday's elections wiped out New York-born former Premier Eamon de Valera's chances of returning to power with a one-party government when the Parliament meets June 13.

De Valera, as in the last Parliament, was assured of having the strongest single group. But it became certain at mid-afternoon that he could not reach a majority of the 147-seat Parliament.

Costello's Fine Gael Party was nowhere near as strong as De Valera's Fianna Fail, but his Coalition parties had the majority among them. Although the Independents walked out of Costello's party, thus forcing the elections, it was considered almost certain they would co-operate with Costello in forming a new government.

The latest count, with only 10 seats not decided:

De Valera's Fianna Fail 63, Costello's Fine Gael 38, Independents 14, Labor 14, Clanna na Talmhan (farmers) 6, Clanna na Poblachta 2.

DIPLOMATS DOUBT RUSSIA WILL ACCEPT CHALLENGE

MOSCOW (AP)—Western diplomats here doubt that Russia will accept the bid from Britain, France and the United States to attend a Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference in Washington July 23.

Western notes proposing such talks were delivered to the Soviet Foreign Ministry Thursday.

These diplomats say Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinskiy probably would not attend such talks unless the Western Powers agree in advance to discuss the North Atlantic pact and American military bases in Europe.

The West has so far refused to talk about these subjects.

No Decision On Pumps

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal civil defence spokesman said today no decision has yet been made by Ottawa on the offer of Saskatchewan authorities to sell 1,900 stirrup pumps to the federal government at cost.

They're still tryin' t'get Russia to that Big Four meetin'. But Malik is still disagreein' about the list o' topics he'll wanta disagree about at the conference.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

VILLAGE FETE

LONDON—In between my many engagements in London I have managed to see something of England's lovely countryside. And as you travel about you speedily recognize that while land development schemes, the rapid sprouting of what are known as "satellite towns," and other expanding industrial activities have rapidly diminished a pleasant feature of the countryside, there still remain many of those charming old-world villages and the beautiful estates which are so much a part of this "green and pleasant land."

To such a category belongs Yattendon, the lovely country estate of Lord Iliffe—whom we met in Victoria prior to our departure and who happened to be a fellow-passenger on the boat from Montreal to Liverpool—and who was our charming host for a memorable week-end.

10,000 ACRES

YATTENDON'S ten thousand acres, set in the lovely Berkshire Hills between Reading and Pangbourne, are away from the main roads, off the track beaten by motor coaches and tourist cars, and so remain unspoiled in their old-world serenity and sense of remoteness from the toll and moil of everyday life with all its troublesome complications.

Not that I am suggesting that those who live in this idyllic spot are exempt from the trials and tribulations of everyday living under an austerior program—far from it. But at least they are spared the queues outside the butcher shops and at the bus stops, and the other reminders of what life is in the hustle and bustle of over-crowded cities.

IDYLIC SPOT

THE village of Yattendon itself is a little haven of peace and beauty, its inhabitants numbering only about 350. You come on it at the foot of a long hill, approached by those winding roads and green hedgerows over which you see lush meadows and bluebell-carpeted woods, the trees and grass of a greenness only to be seen in England in the spring.

Just before you get to the village you pass Bradfield, a boys' school which celebrated its centenary just a month or so ago, its mellowed brick-and-flint buildings and quaint mulioned windows and arched doorways attesting to its age.

ROYAL OAK ARMS

THATCHED cottages, whitewashed walls, mellowed red bricks and hand-hewn beams were a characteristic of the village itself. And we paid a brief visit to the quaint old Royal Oak Arms, a tiny hostelry dating from Tudor days. Its tiny bar for the "locals" and the slightly more capacious one for visitors were furnished in worn old oak appropriate to its low beamed ceilings and stone-flagged floors.

The bedrooms and sitting room upstairs were approached by winding corridors in which you met odd steps at the most unexpected places, almost knocking your head on the low ceilings—reminders of its antiquity. Incidentally, it took its name from the railing-guarded ancient and royal oak—also dating from early Tudor times—on the village green.

FUN OF THE FAIR

IT SEEMED thoroughly in keeping that, during our stay, a village fete was held at Lord Iliffe's home, thus carrying out a tradition of the last 250 years. Held on the emerald lawns just below the house, with a vista of the surrounding countryside it was as rural English as anything could be. There were two enormous marquees, one for tea and the other devoted to the various stalls—the comparative paucity of their contents and the avidity with which the articles were bought were pathetic reminders of the shortages Britons face today.

There were the traditional band and the traditional opening by the wife of the Lord Lieutenant of the county. And when the host, Lord Iliffe, invited me to say a few words, the gathering of about 300 or so seemed to welcome that small variation from tradition as an event!

SPORTING EVENTS

EVEN THE GAMES and sporting events provided for the collection of money for local charities were traditional. Space does not permit of my mentioning them all, but we both indulged in the amusing one of "bowling for the pig." This required the knocking down with a wooden ball of a number of iron skittles set on the grass in a small enclosure.

All the local farmers and farmers' wives joined in, as the prize was a live pig. And we chuckled when a burly farmer, just about to try his luck, heard that his rather gangling son had scored the highest up to that point, which was rather early in the afternoon. Whereupon he turned round and said to the son, very audibly and in a broad accent: "Ye'd best not waste any more time around 'ere. Ye'd best get 'oom and clean out the pigstoy!"

SHOOL PAGEANT TONIGHT

Mark Anniversary

A pageant of films, dancing, music and song will be presented tonight at 8.15 at Victoria High School auditorium to mark the opening of the school's two-day 75th anniversary celebration. Graduate Dick Diespecker, newspaperman, author and radio personality, will present a commentary on the films to depict the history of the school and life in the community since the school was founded in 1876.

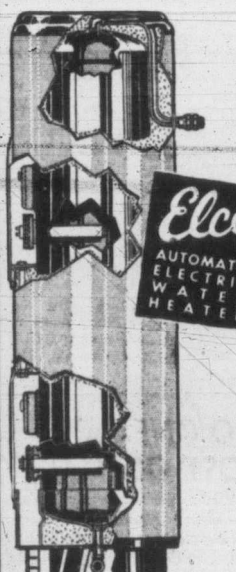

The pageant will be repeated Saturday evening. Saturday afternoon, beginning at 1.30, top athletes from high schools all over the province will compete in the finals of the provincial track and field championships. During the meet, Victoria High's new cinder track will be formally turned over by the Victoria Gyrus Club to the Greater Victoria School Board.

Saturday afternoon at 3, former graduates will gather at the school for an anniversary tea. A survey of all available space at the Public Market with a view to using it to best advantage was authorized by city finance committee Thursday.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime BY H. T. WEBSTER

AFTER CARRYING ABOUT A POUND OF KEYS ETC. FOR A YEAR THE BIG OPPORTUNITY ARRIVES TO USE ONE

Freedom Of Speech Law In India Passes Easily

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's Parliament approved by a vote of 228 to 19 today the controversial freedom of speech clause in the constitutional amendment demanded by Prime Minister Nehru.

Three editors, who are also Congress Party Members of Parliament, showed their displeasure by abstaining.

India's editors had gone on record against Nehru's proposal on the ground it constitutes an unwarranted restraint against a free press. But Nehru said the restrictive clause is necessary to maintain calm in the present period of international crisis.

The Indian constitution guarantees freedom of speech and expression for all citizens but adds that nothing in the clause governing the guarantee shall affect any existing law "insofar as it relates to or prevents the state from making any law relating to libel, slander, defamation, contempt of court, or any matter which offends against the decency or morality or which undermines the security of or tends to overthrow the state."

The clause adopted by Parliament today removes special mention of libel and slander but includes such acts as those which endanger public order or friendly relations with foreign states.

Scouts Assist In Victoria Traffic Count

A cordon count, believed the first of its kind ever conducted in Victoria, will get under way Saturday and is expected to provide valuable information on the traffic flow and resultant parking problem.

Cars coming in and out of town on all main arteries will be counted from 8.30 to 1.30 by Boy Scouts, working in pairs and located at 18 different points.

"If 1,000 cars come in and 600 go out, we will learn the traffic movement, which will help in solving the parking problem," said Robert Dobie, head of the city's traffic survey section, who will be in charge. "In that one example we know there will be 400 cars trying to locate parking."

The 40 Boy Scouts on the job will be in charge of Freeman King, executive commissioner. "We urge the public to refrain from asking the Scouts questions about the count so the boys can give all their attention to the counting job," said Mr. Dobie.

He stated the Scouts were doing the work as a service to the community in spite of the fact that they were also busy preparing for a rally June 9.

Violent Clash On N.Z. Waterfront

Fists, Batons Fly As 200 Police Charge Striking Dockers' Parade

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters)—Two hundred baton-wielding police today broke up a procession of striking longshoremen in the most violent clash since New Zealand's waterfront labor troubles began four months ago.

Red Casualties Continue To Soar Upwards

WASHINGTON (AP)—Total enemy casualties in Korea through May 30 reached 1,133,410, the U.S. Defense Department estimated today.

This represents an increase of 108,006 since May 23.

The total is made up of 682,238 battle casualties, 138,880 non-battle losses and 149,447 prisoners of war through May 16.

Comparative totals for all of the United Nations forces in Korea are not available. The last Defense Department figures for U.S. battle casualties through May 25 totaled 67,427.

1 Wounded, 1 Hurt In Canadian List

OTTAWA (CP)—The army today issued its 26th casualty list of the Korean war, reporting one man wounded and one man injured in a battle accident.

The list brought to 137 the number of casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in the Korean war. They include 43 dead, 82 wounded and 12 injured in battle accidents.

The list: Wounded—Jodoin, Marcel, Pte., Montreal.

Battle Accident—Lessard, Gerard, Pte., Coaticook, Que.

Canadians Happy Over First Major Encounter

ON THE KOREAN WEST CENTRAL FRONT (Delayed) (Reuters)—Canadian troops, drying out in the sun after their first major encounter with the Communists, in torrential rains, totaled up a "balance sheet" of losses and gains today and were satisfied.

They had suffered comparatively light casualties while one company also claimed 200 to 300 Communists killed.

The action was fought some miles north of the 38th parallel. After an almost unopposed advance from the Eighth Army's defensive positions, they struck tough opposition from reinforced Communist elements.

Able Company came under heavy fire in a valley as they tried to capture a commanding hill.

Dog Company met mortar and machine-gun fire on the peaks as they fought on the right flank of the main body. At one stage they were covered by a strong Communist group on three sides.

They engaged vigorously and were intent on continuing their advance when the rear command ordered them to return to more secure positions.

Locate 38 Bodies Of Mine Victims

EASINGTON, Durham, Eng. (Reuters)—Rescue teams working in dangerous fumes and dust clouds had today located 38 bodies of the 81 men entombed in Tuesday's coal mine explosion.

This left 43 still missing 900 feet underground. All hope of finding them alive had been abandoned.

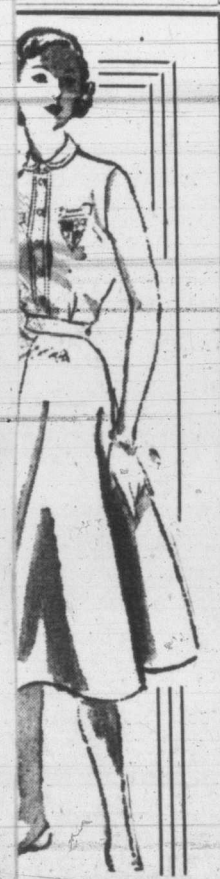

Funeral and memorial services are being held tomorrow.

Defence Minister Shinwell was to broadcast today for an appeal fund for dependents.

OTTAWA (CP)—Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General, today called upon the Communists to say whether they would agree to a cease-fire in Korea "approximately along the 38th parallel."

Says Cartel 'Soaking' U.S. On Tin Price

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States today assailed as profiteers members of a world cartel which controls the production and price of tin.

The attack was made by W. Stuart Symington, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., which controls all U.S. supplies, in announcing a price cut from $1.39 to $1.36 a pound for tin the agency sells to American users.

Symington said the world cartel, operated by British, Dutch, Belgian and Bolivian interests, has kept tin prices "fantastically" high since the Korean war began at a cost of $500,000,000 to U.S. taxpayers.

"That money does not get down to the people in the tin-producing countries," Symington told a news conference. "It just makes a few rich men richer. And probably some of the money winds up in some New York banks."

"We are going to do everything we can to get that tin price down."

Army Men Arrested After Coup Fails

ATHENS (UP)—Two Greek army brigadiers and five colonels were believed under arrest today as leaders of an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the government.

The officers were reported linked by the resignation of Field Marshal Alexander Papagos as supreme commander of the Greek army.

They believed he had been fired, although Papagos cited poor health in submitting his resignation.

Red China Radio Gives Weaknesses

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Peiping radio said Thursday a Chinese Communist delegation back from Korea reported "more planes, tanks, guns, anti-aircraft guns, anti-tank guns, trucks and cars" were needed. On With The Job

PREMIER JOHNSON'S ANNOUNCEMENT that his Government intends to complete its present term of office will clear the air in provincial politics. Of late it has been filled with rumors and confused by the off-hand remark of Attorney-General Wismer that an early election was possible. From Mr. Johnson's statement it is to be assumed that no election will take place for at least two years, perhaps longer.

There is no reason why Mr. Johnson should consider an election now. His Government was returned to power in June, 1949, and can retain it until 1954, though the usual practice in British Columbia is to hold elections at four-year intervals. The Government's mandate is thus hardly half spent.

It has much work ahead of it, many new problems to face which it did not anticipate even six months ago. If it is to master the new situation stemming out of the world struggle and the resulting inflation it should be concentrating its mind on business, not politics.

This apparently is what Mr. Johnson proposes to do. Restored to health after a cruel illness, he may be expected to bring a new energy into his administration.

The people of British Columbia for their part will welcome, we believe, an end of the rather absurd excursions and alarms which have filled the last few months.

The Premier's plans presumably could be changed only by a break in the Coalition. Of this there is no immediate sign. Mr. Anscomb has indicated no thought of retiring from the present partnership until the eve of the election. He, too, seems ready to concentrate on business.

All that has happened this year to stir up political excitement—most of it on newspaper headlines—members of the Conservative Party in the Legislature and already they have dropped from public view. The Opposition has failed a great deal and almost seemed to imagine that it was already fighting an election campaign but now that the dust has settled, the C.C.F. is seen by its own public confession to be a bitterly divided group which, for the present anyway, is no threat to the Government.

Under these conditions Mr. Johnson is wise to forget distant elections and get on with the job. It is big enough to require all the Government's time.

The Roncarelli Case

SOME MONTHS AGO A QUEBEC restaurant owner named Roncarelli provided bail for some Jehovah Witnesses whom the Quebec government was prosecuting. Mr. Roncarelli's restaurant license was thereupon cancelled on the orders of Premier Duplessis. Now a Quebec court has ruled that Mr. Duplessis had no right to damage Mr. Roncarelli in this fashion merely because he had sympathized with prisoners who were facing trial.

The court's latest judgment is a significant blow in support of civil liberties in Quebec, where the Duplessis government has often tried to damage them.

When a court grants bail to a prisoner it invites his friends to provide the money, bail being an essential part of our system of justice. The court, at this point, is not interested in the guilt or innocence of the prisoner who has yet to be tried. One does not have to sympathize with the Jehovah Witnesses to see that they, like any other prisoners, have the right to bail if the court grants it. When Mr. Roncarelli supplies that bail he is doing what he has every right to do and he is assisting the courts in their function.

Yet, because he abhors the Jehovah Witnesses, Mr. Duplessis penalizes a business man for assisting them. It is difficult to imagine how a government could use its powers more arbitrarily in defiance of the citizen's basic civil rights but at this sort of thing Mr. Duplessis is adept.

The Roncarelli case will now go to a higher court where Mr. Duplessis will try to make good his act of tyranny. Since it involves a vital principle of justice the case, it is to be hoped, will finally reach the Canadian Supreme Court.

This and other cases during the last few years demonstrate once again the need for a Canadian Bill of Rights, which would protect the citizen against tyrannical governments like that of Mr. Duplessis. Members of Parliament, led by Mr. John Diefenbaker, who are proposing such constitutional guarantees of basic liberties have in the Roncarelli case a striking exhibit to support them.

'By Any Other Name...'

THE INSISTENCE OF ORGANIZED labor that hospital premiums be reduced, without a corresponding demand for decreased benefits, is an understandable enough human reaction to the present-day high costs of living. But it betrays a lack of appreciation for the facts of hospital economics and public finances in general. A realistic approach to the problem makes it obvious that hospital services must be paid for by some means—either by private payments in full for services rendered, by arrangements for insurance, or from public funds.

The financial plight of the hospitals and the heavy burden borne by some families before the insurance plan was introduced furnished ample evidence that most individuals were unable to carry the cost of adequate hospital care, particularly as expensive new techniques and equipment helped to send ward rates soaring. Unpaid hospital bills had placed many institutions in precarious financial positions, as well as imposing a crushing burden on a large number of families. The present labor depositions imply that a feasible insurance scheme, self-supporting and permanent, cannot be devised. The demand that Government should assume at least a large part of the burden is a renunciation of the principle of insurance in favor of state provision of benefits. Yet the labor reasoning is fallacious when it suggests that the public thereby will avoid the burden of cost.

The Government has available for hospital subsidies or any other purposes only the money it can collect from the taxpayers. Whether the public's contributions go into a fund labeled "insurance premiums" or "appropriation for hospitals" can make little difference to the pocketbooks of the citizens who provide the money. And it should not be forgotten that the great body of middle income workers, largely comprising the membership of organized labor, is the main source of taxes. They will escape no hospital expense by "charging it to the Government." Such a process merely hides the expenditure. When it is out in the open and clearly labeled it can be better controlled.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE FORTHCOMING Canadian census, which asks every citizen to disclose most of his personal affairs, is widely attacked in the newspapers as a passing aberration of over-inquisitive official snoopers in Ottawa. In fact, it is part of a much larger process—the destruction of the private person everywhere. And this, perhaps, is the greatest current danger to democracy, especially because it is presented as a safeguard to democracy.

It is loosely said that in a democracy no man should have any secrets from the government which he himself has created; whereas it should be obvious that only in a democracy can a citizen hope to have such secrets. In a dictatorship the dictator must know all the affairs of his slaves and creatures. You might say, indeed, that the basic distinction between a free and a slave society is that the citizens of the former are private persons and the human mass of the latter are public persons and, in the end, cease to be persons altogether.

THEREIN lies the great dilemma of a democracy which has transformed itself into a welfare state.

A thoughtful man, a truly private person, will accept pretty philosophically a large expansion of the state's economic power. He may argue—and rightly on the available evidence—that the state will manage economic affairs worse than the private owner but socialism, if it touches only economic affairs, can only damage a man's purse; it cannot touch his inward life. The philosopher will survive quite comfortably, even if it be in rags, provided the state will leave his mind, his private person, alone.

TO THE philosopher the real trouble arises because the state, in attempting to manage economic affairs, can never stop there and, to make good its management, must increasingly invade personal affairs. Of which the new census is a symptom.

It asks, for example, how much money the citizen earned in the last year and exactly what he was doing during the week ending June 2, 1951. In a democracy of free men it is none of the state's business what the citizen was doing in that week or any other, provided he was breaking no law. Perhaps, to all outside appearances, he was doing nothing. Perhaps he was engaged in the highest human pursuit and merely thinking; but can you imagine a high-pressure census taker being satisfied with such an answer?

"WHAT," asks the census taker, "were you doing in the week ending June 2, 1951?" The citizen replies, "I was thinking." "Yes," the census taker insists, "you were thinking, but what were you really doing?" No census taker can be expected to understand thought, the hardest and most useful of all human work. If he could understand thought he would not be a census taker. He would be a philosopher and would regard such things as a census with proper contempt.

Suppose, for example, a census taker could call this year on William Shakespeare. "What," says the census taker, repeating parrot-like his well-worn question, "were you doing, Mr. Shakespeare, in the week ending June, 1951?" "I was lying," says Shakespeare, "on a bank where the wild thyme grows, chewing a little rosemary for remembrance and thinking of poor Yorick." And unable to get any further information from his victim, the census taker writes him down as an idler, a vagrant and probably a Communist.

KNOWING that he will certainly be misunderstood in the census office, that his little indexed card will whirl through the vast electrical counting machines of Ottawa, that he will become a number in an index, the philosopher will wisely deceive the census taker. He will reply that he was working very hard on the week ending June 2 at some useful occupation like gambling on the stock market or turning over a handsome profit on lumber. Thus entered on the record as a good and productive citizen, he will go about his dreaming, with a sad little smile at human folly.

UNFORTUNATELY, there are few philosophers and less poets around these days and not many banks of wild thyme or groves of rosemary either. Most of the citizens of a democracy are not being forced by the state to disgorge their secrets but are voluntarily surrendering them, even forcing them obscenely upon the public mind.

The movie actresses of Hollywood, for example, those most celebrated, respected and highly paid citizens of democracy, fill the public press with advance notice of their pregnancies, with monotonous regularity. Men of distinction gladly publish their pictures in whisky advertisements, together with details of their household business. Every prominent lady of fashion is happy to testify that she uses a certain brand of soap and is a miracle of personal cleanliness, while others can somehow manage to be spartan without public proclamation.

OF ALL the freedoms which democracy should safeguard the chief is freedom from publicity, but I have never heard any statesman mention it nor many citizens assert it. That freedom is not being taken from us by the state. We are handing it over to the state and to the public at large of our own will, out of a kind of childish craving for notoriety (if possible with a small fee from the advertiser), and thus surrendering to a kind of intellectual slavery.

THE CURRENT dilemma, the question whether a welfare state can preserve a man's inner welfare while ensuring his economic welfare, can be summed up in the fact that there are two kinds of human creatures—those who believe and those who disbelieve in the private person as the supreme objective of any good society.

The private persons are being overwhelmed by the public. The census taker, with his new-fangled questions, is only one small agent of a vast conspiracy. Let us ask him in reply what he was doing on the week ending June 2. He will reply that he was taking a census and asking outrageous and irrelevant questions of everybody. And, being a census taker, he will doubtless imagine that he was doing something quite as useful as lying on a bank of wild thyme and conceiving "Hamlet."

Time For A Check-Up

Speaking For Oak Bay

With reference to your article of the 25th inst. on the first page of the second section concerning the appointment of Gordon Hartley and "Forky" Andrews, I take exception to the opening sentence in which you said, "Victoria High School, long dominant in the field of athletics in the Greater Victoria area."

Do you include Oak Bay High School in the Greater Victoria area? It would appear not for only this year Oak Bay High won the following things: Senior rugby, senior soccer, senior basketball, junior boys' basketball, senior girls' grass hockey, and badminton. These sports were in competition with the four other high schools in the Greater Victoria area.

Does the editor realize that for the last eight years Oak Bay has won the Howard Russell Cup, symbolic of senior rugby supremacy in the Greater Victoria area.

In 1949 Oak Bay although beaten decisively by Victoria High in the Greater Victoria High School track meet won the inter-provincial meet, competing in Vancouver against athletes from the whole province. This indeed was a superb effort for a school of 350 students when you realize it was competing against schools as large as Vancouver Technical which enrolls 1,800 students.

This also showed that the point system for the Greater Victoria High School track meet was wrong in allowing a school with more athletes to win over a school with better athletes.

Finally I would like to say that this paper of which I am a daily reader is far too prone, in my opinion and in the opinion of many students at Oak Bay High School, to write glowing accounts concerning the sports at Victoria High School and, when bothering to write of sports at the other high schools, doing it in a half-hearted manner. Why not give some credit where credit is due?

Facts On Fog

The Times of London

TO walk down one of those modest Mayfair streets in which tailors ply their trade has become more frightening than to turn the corner and come in sight of the front door of an old-fashioned dentist. Little can be seen from the outside, for opaque glass generally covers the windows and only tall men can, without standing on tiptoe, catch a glimpse of rolls of cloth waiting to be cut—for how much?—into suits.

For how much? That is the question which, if it were answered by price cards, legible from the pavement, would send many wavering customers naked—or at least shabby—away. Once inside, with the tempting stuff between his fingers and warnings in his ears that it will be up 50 per cent tomorrow, the waverer allows himself to be persuaded to step that way—and the relentless mirrors encircle him, reflecting baggy trousers and shiny seat.

If he is strong minded and buoyed up by the thought that he is, at all points of compass, stock size, he may go elsewhere and try his luck off the peg, but, even then, the cheque he has to write would cause the ghost of that old dandy to raise phantom eyebrows and take a pinch of impalpable snuff.

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

DEAR SIR (Hamish wrote) further to mine of the 23rd inst. (his of the 23rd inst. being a postcard showing a lurid picture of Pizz-Wizz who was once the main attraction at the Starland Theatre in Montreal back in the days that are best beyond recall) this is to inform you that I am Going West.

It may come as a surprise to you that Col. S. Skeffington-Smuts and I won an all-expense second honeymoon trip to beautiful Banff and Lake Louise. Not wishing to be deceitful, I admitted to the radio man who ran the contest that the Colonel and I had not had our first honeymoon yet, but the man was in a distressing state of nerves for some reason and all he could mutter was "Take the railway tickets! Just get out of town. Just get out of town!"

I am very pleased that I am going to explore the hinterland of Canada and the territories to the west of the Ottawa River. The Colonel is taking his cavalry sword and I managed to find an excellent bowie knife in a Craig-Street pawnshop (remember?), so we are well prepared for eventualities. Please acknowledge receipt forthwith of the puppet which I shipped to you. I planned to take this with me, but the man at the railway office assured me that I would be able to sleep on the train in comparative safety, even in the wildest sections through which we will travel, such as Moose Jaw and Regina.

I believe every citizen should see Canada, and even British Columbia, before he is too old, so I have decided, after we have had our honeymoon in beautiful Banff and Lake Louise, to drop in at your island and see how you are faring. The Colonel agrees with me, so please arrange an extra place for him.

We had a farewell party in the Colonel's apartment last night and most of the tenants were there to wish us Bon Voyage, including Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs and Mrs. Fitterley, and Mr. Potts, the janitor, who is my boss, you know, and Brig. Ian Igffish and all sorts of other people, and they were all asking after you; remembering when you lived in Apartment 6-C and the bags under your eyes.

"Boy," said Mr. Tubbs, "if he has to sprinkle the garden out there, all he'll have to do is fill those bags with water at the tap, then stand over the flowers and shake his head back and forth!" and everybody laughed heartily.

We are traveling very light because of course we don't know how many portages we may have to make once we get west of the Ontario border. I will be sorry to leave the old, familiar streets, in a way, but I believe travel is broadening and there is something thrilling about having Col. Skeffington-Smuts along with me. You should see his eyes light up when he thinks of our impending trip and cries: "The Frontier! The Frontier!"

We have the bridal suite in a hotel at Banff and another at Lake Louise, so I think we ought to be very comfortable. We are traveling on a special train with a party of the Happy Day Tours, who I understand are American tourists, and of course that is very nice for them, because I will be able to explain to them all about Canada.

Yours till we cross the Great Divide, Hamish.

P.S. I forgot to mention that Mr. Potts, the janitor, discharged me when he learned I intended to take a trip, so you will be glad to know that I may be spending some little time with you out there. H.

"Here's your aspirin, darling."

Approach To The Basic Problem

By WALTER LIPPMANN
From Washington

ACCORDING to the prevailing theory in this country, which is that Red China is a mere Soviet puppet, there ought to be no great difficulty in the Far East if a deal can be made with Russia. But if, as I believe, Red China is not a mere puppet, if the Chinese revolution is as Chinese as the French revolution was French and the Russian revolution was Russian, then I am afraid we shall find it very difficult to make peace with Red China in Korea and to wage a quasi-war with China everywhere else.

Lippmann

The Chinese revolution, as I see it, is doing what its two great historic predecessors, the French and the Russian revolutions did before it: it is fighting—more fiercely and more recklessly and more effectively than Chinese armies have fought for ages—to complete and consolidate its victory by crushing and expelling all native opposition and all foreign intervention.

It should have surprised no one that the Chinese Communists reacted so violently to MacArthur's march to the Manchurian frontier. Korea was the gateway and staging area for the Japanese invasion and conquest of Manchuria and the north of China. The terrible courage which the Chinese troops are displaying serves the interests of Moscow. But never conceivably could that courage have been manufactured in Moscow.

Taking this view, which is of course not the prevailing or the official view, I do not see how an armistice can be arranged with Mao in Korea if we are going to back Chiang to overthrow Mao. I would suppose that Mao would rather fight us in Korea, where Russia is close at hand and where Russian vital interests are immediately involved, than to relieve our forces in Korea and then have the fighting move on to southern and central China where Russia is not directly involved or capable of intervening so powerfully.

CRUX OF THE PROBLEM

Chiang Kai-shek's government is the crux of the problem in that as long as we recognize it, subsidize it, and arm it, the Chinese civil war will not have ended and it can be transformed at any time into a Chinese-American war. That is the reason why Formosa is so important. It is so important because it is Chiang's military base for an invasion of China and the overthrow of the Red government.

It follows that the critical and irreconcilable point at issue between Red China and the United States is not whether Formosa shall be ceded to Red China and Mao's delegate seated at the U.N. The critical and irreconcilable point is that Chiang Kai-shek is in Formosa and at the U.N., where he is recognized and supported by America as the authentic government of China, entitled to overthrow the Peking government and likely to get the material support as well as the moral encouragement of the United States to attempt to do that.

If this is the right way to look at the problem, then the terms of a general truce would probably have to be the status quo ante in Korea and the complete neutralization, not only in the military sense but politically as well, of Chiang's government.

This would not be appeasement. For Red China would not obtain Formosa or representation in the United Nations as a reward or as a ransom for a cease-fire in Korea. Red China would still be excluded from Formosa and from the United Nations. But hostilities would end not only in Korea but everywhere in the Far East.

Multi Million Dollar Plan For Canadian Culture Urged

Massey Commission On Arts, Science Would Keep CBC Fee At Current Rate

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—The Massey Commission on Arts, Sciences and Letters today urged the Government to undertake an ambitious cultural program, involving Federal aid to universities, big expansion schemes in the capital and C.B.C. control over radio and television.

If implemented, the recommendations would run into millions of dollars, but the Commission made no attempt to estimate the cost.

Culture, the commission observed, cannot be obtained "cheaply." If Canadians want a more generous and better cultural fare "we must pay for it."

Probably the biggest news to the average Canadian is the commission's recommendation that the annual $2.50 radio license fee remain unchanged. The CBC, in its brief, intimated that the fee should be boosted to $5 to meet new financial burdens.

The 200,000-word report, two years in the making, was tabled today in the Commons by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

It emphasized the need for a greater nationalism, a greater Canadianism to give new vitality and meaning to an "anaemic" Canadian cultural life.

Canada, it intimated, was lagging far behind other countries. "Considerable" amounts of money would be needed before she could catch up.

U.S. Invasion Formidable

The country's boundaries were threatened by a more powerful, but not more desirable, foreign culture—the United States.

"The American invasion by film, radio and periodical is formidable," said the commission. While much of it was good, there were those things, especially the "crime" and "horror" type of radio programs, which were "positively harmful."

Canada was consuming American culture while her own artists, writers, dramatists, painters and others went unrecognized.

To put new nourishment into Canada's cultural soul, and five-member commission outlined about 200 recommendations, touching on ballet and philosophy, totem poles and medical research. It urged that many of them be implemented immediately, even in the face of a third world war.

"We are defending civilization, our share of it, our contribution to it," said the commission, headed by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Chancellor of the University of Toronto.

"The things with which our inquiry deals are the elements which give civilization its character and meaning. It would be paradoxical to defend something which we are unwilling to strengthen and enrich—and which we even allow to decline."

In these times of crisis, "national morale is of paramount importance." Cultural things in time of war become a "spiritual weapon." They give "meaning to our unity... posters and pep talks are not enough."

University Grants Urged

Most significant of the recommendations was one to grant federal aid to meet the appeal of financially-stricken Canadian universities.

The commission recommended grants on the basis of provincial population, to be spread among universities in each province on a basis of student registration.

Under an integrated system of national scholarships, about 10,000 undergraduates, about one-fifth of the current university student population, would be given assistance. Loans would be available for deserving college students.

Scholarships also would be available for about 160 post-graduates, undertaking work in the natural sciences, the humanities, social sciences and law. In the field of cultural development in the capital, the commission urged that a national library be built immediately and that the National Gallery be divorced from its meagre quarters in the National Museum and given a building of its own.

The National Museum should be renamed the "Canadian Museum of Natural History" and include a representation of Canadian geology, botany, zoology and natural resources.

The report recommended more space for the public archives; that quarters be expanded and that it should begin collecting all important historical material relating to Canada.

But the commission didn't stop there. It suggested the government might later establish a historical museum and a Canadian museum of science, as well as national aquarium, botanical and zoological gardens and to give support to similar ventures in other Canadian centres.

Though the commission was unanimous about these and other recommendations, disagreement cropped up on the controversial issue of a future radio, film and television policy.

One member, Arthur Survever, Montreal civil engineer, suggested that an independent board be given jurisdiction over radio and television as requested by Canada's private radio stations.

The main body, however, recommended, instead, that permanent control be retained by the CBC under an enlarged board of governors. However, private broadcasters would be granted the right to appeal to the federal courts, against miscarriage of justice through CBC decisions.

The commission urged, too, that the CBC trim commercial advertising and step out of the field in local cases where a private station was available to carry the commercial. It might consider eliminating some "less desirable" commercials carried on a national level. A second French-speaking CBC network should be set up, and a CBC French-speaking station established for the Maritimes.

The commission suggested that the National Film Board receive more funds, though this was opposed by Mr. Survever, who said that strict economy be observed by this organization. More money also should be made available to help the National Gallery buy more pictures and to help the Canadian artist.

A campaign should be undertaken to preserve and restore Canadian historic sites under a more comprehensive program undertaken by the historic sites and monuments board.

To help overcome the "ignorance" in foreign countries of Canada's cultural growth, more press officers should be posted abroad by the External Affairs Department, the CBC international services expanded and the Film Board given more money to boost distributions of films abroad.

Aid For Individual Artists

Other aid should be available on a lesser scale to help artists, musicians and men of letters. Money also should be granted to Canadian voluntary organizations helping in Canada's cultural expansion.

Criticism Flayed By S. African Head

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—Prime Minister Dr. Daniel Malan said last night that if overseas allegations of South Africa persisted, the Union might be driven to establish a free and independent republic. At a rally of the Nationalist Youth League, Malan said the establishment of a republic would be due to criticism by Britain of internal affairs of the Union.

All these schemes might be co-ordinated under a new national organization—a Canadian Council—established by the government, but not staffed by government officials.

The organization would be manned by "distinguished and public-spirited citizens," other than federal government officials. The chairman and vice-chairman would be permanent. The others would be paid daily including traveling expenses.

Armed by funds voted by Parliament, this council would steer Canada's national cultural growth, distributing funds to worthwhile organizations, planning scholarship schemes, organizing and directing a national commission for United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization work in Canada and in the main watching over Canada's spiritual welfare.

SUGAR BOOST UNEXPLAINED

Wholesalers were bewildered today at the recent increase of 20 cents per 100 pounds in the price of sugar in Victoria Monday and which is expected to be passed on to the consumer as soon as old supplies are used up.

Dealers said they were given to understand a few months ago that there was a world surplus of sugar and that countries producing the commodity were having difficulty getting rid of supplies.

Senator From Ontario Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Sen. Robert William Gladstone, 71-year-old Liberal Senator for Ontario, died in Ottawa's Civic Hospital early today following a heart seizure.

Sen. Gladstone was a former member of the House of Commons who was summoned to the Senate in September, 1949. His home town was Guelph, Ont.

His death reduced to 87 the membership in the 102-seat Upper Chamber. There were 78 Liberals, nine Progressive Conservatives and 45 vacant seats (one of them in B.C.).

HOME GARDEN

by Hilda Beasly

Most of the cacti plants in my collection are now in an active state of growth, creating interest in folks only mildly attracted to this type of plant.

Many of the genera are either flowering, or in bud at this time, and these receive water whenever the condition of the soil indicates the need. A large, old plant will need water almost as often as a newer plant in a small pot. The soil itself is the best guide; if the surface is dust dry when stirred with the finger, the pot is filled with water—around the plant, not over it!

Some cacti produce many blooms within the period of three weeks or so, and are often finished for the season. Included in this group are the epiphyllums (or phyllocacti) with enormous blooms of red, orange, or pink, borne in great profusion.

When the show is over, this kind may be repotted if the roots have filled the pots, and then placed in a shady spot in the garden for the summer. Bone-meal is included in the potting soil, which for this type should be a rich compost with a little sand added.

Thelocactus bicolor, globose in shape with strong spines and beautiful flowers, is just beginning to attract attention. Some of this variety, only three inches in diameter have three and four flower buds, although those with only one bud are making faster progress. I have noticed that after one blossom has faded and dried, another bud will frequently appear in its place, displacing the shrivelled bloom, and thus extending the flowering season.

First R.C.A.F. Pilot To Bag Enemy Jet In Korea Gives Glasses Assist

By DAVE MCINTOSH

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pair of sun glasses helped Flt. Lt. Omer Levesque, D.F.C., bag the first enemy plane shot down by a Canadian in the Korean war.

The 31-year-old R.C.A.F. pilot from Mont Joli, Que., told about it today when he arrived back in Canada after a tour of operations with the United States Air Force. He was in Korea nearly six months.

With Levesque was an old buddy of his, R.A.F. Flt. Lt. Steve Daniels of Dumfries, Scotland. Daniels, 31, who destroyed 15 enemy planes in the Second World War, was the first R.A.F. pilot to fly against the Communists in Korea.

Levesque and Daniels were both members of 401 Squadron at Biggin Hill in England in 1942 before Levesque was shot down over the English Channel and spent the rest of the war in a prisoner-of-war camp.

FOUR DESTROYED

Levesque was also the first Canadian to destroy an enemy plane in the last war. His total bag was four destroyed and one probably destroyed.

Levesque is on loan to the U.S.A.F. He will fly first to Washington, D.C., and then to Ottawa, where he will report on performance of American Sabre jet aircraft in Korea.

This is how Levesque described his kill: "It was just south of the Yalu River, near the border of Manchuria. We were flying cover for some B-29s. You can't escort them, exactly, because they're too slow for the jet fighters. You rendezvous with them at the target."

"A couple of MIGs hopped across from Manchuria and took a pass at the B-29s. I tailed one in. I followed him in a turn twice. He tried to lose me in the sun but I had on dark sun glasses and could still see him. He thought he'd lost me."

"I guess I was about 1,500 feet away. I don't know about the speed but it must have been around 500 miles an hour."

"I hit him with a deflection shot. It seemed to damage his hydraulic system because he went into an uncontrollable roll and went down."

"I looked around and there was another MIG on my tail. I pulled up at full throttle and barrel-rolled into the sun and he quit."

"I passed under a B-29 and he took a whack at me. Thought I was a MIG."

Levesque said the sabres had more speed than the Communist jets and that he thought the new Canadian jets now in production would be still faster with Canadian modifications on the engines. Communist pilots were no great shakes.

Daniels said the thing that infuriated allied pilots the most was that the Communist fighters could hover on the northern side of the Manchurian border and then dart across on sudden attacks, having built up full speed in safe territory.

Two Provinces Need Rain For Wheat Crops

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba and Saskatchewan need more rain and Alberta less, the weekly crop reports of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways showed today.

The C.P.R. report said subsoil moisture conditions are favorable in Manitoba, but top soil is becoming dry. The need for rain is general to promote even germination and growth of crops.

Northern and west-central Saskatchewan report continued satisfactory moisture conditions, but more rain is required in other sections to provide necessary surface moisture.

Alberta is well off for moisture except for a few areas in the southeast near the Saskatchewan border.

The C.N.R. report showed wheat seeding is almost completed in Manitoba except south and east of Winnipeg. Coarse grains are practically completed in southern and central Manitoba and more than 50 per cent completed in the north. Seeding of most coarse grains.

Victoria Daily Times 5 FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1951

is near-completed in southern Saskatchewan. Grasshoppers are hatching at a number of points, but little damage is reported.

Attack On Non-Pact Land Would Worry Strategists

No Clause In Atlantic Treaty To Provide For Defence In Event Of Korea-Like Blow

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—What would the North Atlantic treaty organization do if the Communist camp made a Korea-like strike at one of the non-member countries on the Mediterranean or in the Middle East?

This question is receiving close attention from men whose duty it is to plan the defence strategy of the treaty organization.

Even though a Communist invasion attempt in the Eastern Mediterranean area might not be aimed directly at a N.A.T.O. member it could menace seriously the mutual military security of the defensive network.

Of particular concern is the question of Yugoslavia.

If, as the United States desires, Greece and Turkey should be taken into the N.A.T.O. organization, the southern sector of the

Re-Arm Moral Values Theme

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—Men and women from many parts of the world and many stations in life began a conference here today to determine how to best tell the world:

"Strengthen your spiritual as well as your physical resources."

The 500 delegates from 15 countries are part of the "moral re-armament" movement. They believe that a literal re-arming of moral values can provide democracy's best answer to the Communist ideology.

Government heads and common laborers will take part in an exchange of ideas on this peaceful island between Michigan's two peninsulas.

On hand for opening sessions were many foreign visitors, including August Savstrom, speaker of the Lower House in the Swedish Legislature, and Otto G. Cadegg, secretary of the Swiss railway workers.

In its present form, there apparently is no clause to provide action in the event of attack against such non-N.A.T.O. members as Yugoslavia nor, indeed, Greece and Turkey, although these latter countries are working closely with Western European defence powers.

Any joint action might require an amendment to the North Atlantic Treaty itself.

Oak Bay Garden Watering

In an effort to cause the least inconvenience to home owners this summer, it has been decided to leave the matter of restrictions in garden watering up to the common sense of our ratepayers.

You are, therefore, forthwith, strongly requested to limit your watering to three days of your own choice per week, plus Sundays.

As fixed sprinkling systems are heavy users of water all at one time, it is most desirable that they should not be put into operation any day between the hours of 3 p.m. and 9 p.m., including Sundays.

If the above voluntary system is not observed, compulsory regulations will again have to be put in force, to the inconvenience of many concerned.

Downtown Dynamite Blast In Port Arthur Kills 2

Explosion Set Off By Pneumatic Drill Also Injures Three; Pregnant Woman Hit By Rock

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—A dynamite blast in downtown Port Arthur, set off accidentally by a pneumatic drill, killed two men Wednesday and injured three other men and a woman who is an expectant mother.

Killed in the blast, which showered the downtown section with flying rocks, were George Westfall, 35, from Edmonton and N. Sodaro, A. displaced person from Europe. Both were members of the gang removing loose rock from an excavation on Canadian Oil Company property.

The injured were F. Karhila, A. Guarasci and W. Charyne, members of the work crew, and Mrs. John Onger who was hit in the back by a piece of rock while walking along the street three blocks from the scene.

Westfall was holding the drill when it hit a charge of dynamite, hidden among the rocks where blasting operations were carried out last week. He was thrown 20 feet. Both of Sodaro's legs were blown off.

Mrs. Onger, expecting a child next month, was hit by a rock about the size of a soccer ball. Her two children, with her at the time, were unhurt.

B.C. Flood Threat Less Menacing As Fraser Drops From 18-Ft. Crest

VANCOUVER (CP)—Flood month opened today. British Columbians had their fingers crossed—but loosely.

Though a flood potential exists in the province, experts said possibility of major floods appeared unlikely.

A $30,000,000 disaster hit B.C. in 1948 when the mighty Fraser River gouged through flimsy dikes and spread over thousands of acres in the lower Fraser valley between Vancouver and Hope, 100 miles east of here.

Since then, a new system of dikes, protecting 50,000 people, 178,000 acres of land and $135,000,000 worth of property, has been built at a cost of $11,000,000.

The Fraser—and other rivers—threatened last year but the dikes held. Where seepages did occur, men and equipment were rushed there by truck to plug the gaps.

B.C. didn't get off scot-free last year, by any means. There are hundreds of farmers who live outside the dikes. Some 400 persons were evacuated from their homes and $100,000 was spent on labor and machinery to man the dikes.

"But there was no repetition of the 1948 catastrophe, when 16,000 were forced to flee."

The Fraser crested at 18 feet last week—flood level is 20 feet—and then dropped. It will probably go up again as the runoff of mountain snow continues, but engineers say it is unlikely to approach last year's 24 feet.

Of course, the new

WEDNESDAY CLOSING

Chamber Ballot Not Proper Answer Claim

Plebiscite of Victoria merchants taken two years ago by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to find out if a change in the Wednesday closing act was wanted, is not regarded

Riparian Expert Of B.C. Retires

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man who knows his Canadian rivers and lakes like the back of his hand retired Thursday after 38 years' service with the Dominion government.

C. E. Webb, British Columbia district engineer for the water resources division of the Department of Resources and Development, said he's going to take things easy for a while.

His most recent job was to head an international commission which inquired into the Helmand River problem between Iran and Afghanistan. He returned to his home here a month ago after completing his reports at Washington, D.C.

Motorists Pay $365

Saanich police are cracking down on speeding motorists. In Saanich police court Thursday afternoon 18 paid $15 each for exceeding the 30 m.p.h. speed limit. Three others paid $10 each for going too fast in school zones. Including fines imposed for careless driving and drivers without licences, traffic offenders paid $365.

as a satisfactory answer by the storekeepers specializing in tourist business.

The Chamber sent out 400 ballots. Of the 194 firms to reply, 133 favored no change.

Keeping open on Wednesday afternoons from June to Sept. 30 was favored by 29, while another 25 favored keeping open Wednesdays all year round.

Commenting on the plebiscite, Bernard Shaw of the Shaffordshire China Shoppe said that in his opinion the ballots papers had not been sent to the people who were really interested in the tourist trade.

"I don't know who got the ballot papers, but I know that I did not get one, and I have also checked with three other local firms in the tourist trade business who also did not take part," said Mr. Shaw.

"In consider that if a new plebiscite is taken it should be confined to those firms who are doing tourist business," said Alan Vizard of the Victoria Gift Shop.

Further action may be taken at the next meeting of the Retail Merchants Group of the Chamber of Commerce.

Injured In Fall

Injured in a fall caused when his bicycle skidded in loose gravel, Ross Sinclair, 13, of 1579 Hillside Avenue, was treated for bruises at Jubilee Hospital Thursday afternoon. He was taken to hospital by city police.

Sport Week

By JOHN LARDNER

There are students of baseball to whom the history of baseball law, and of baseball propaganda, is as fascinating as the feats of Cobb, Ruth, Mathewson, DiMaggio and Williams.

This branch of the record has its own stars—A. G. Mills, who drafted the reserve clause and the national agreement in the 1880's; Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, whose formal opinion in the 1920's prolonged the life of the game's misshapen ethical code; Judge Landis, who urged baseball people to "stay the hell out of court"; Happy Chandler, during whose administration some baseball people were paid to stay out of court; A. G. Spalding, and a dozen other leaders, who strove to associate baseball with the U.S. government, and so to win for the game a sort of unwritten dispensation for its obvious, though presumably unavoidable, sins.

Presidents of the U.S.A. have thrown out the season's first ball, sometimes genially, sometimes (see photographs of Calvin Coolidge) not. For many years, that was the extent of the government's co-operation with the baseball owners. Recently (Sports, May 21), Rep. Emanuel Celler said affectionately that there would be an investigation which might lead to a legal dispensation for the game. Last week, four congressmen (Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, Representatives Mills, Price and Herlong) jumped Celler's gun by introducing bills to exempt baseball, here and now, from the antitrust laws.

At the same time, the justice department, in a more neutral spirit, told the F.B.I. to get cracking on an inquiry into complaints that baseball clubs were restricting the free broadcasting of ball games. A sort of race is on; and baseball, characteristically, is doing nothing but watching and waiting and mopping sweat from its brow.

Where To Draw The Line?

What can, or should be, done? "Nothing," was the answer given a few years ago by a pair of lawyers, Norman Lewis and James P. Durante, in their monograph, "The Law of Baseball." This work showed clearly that there were holes in baseball outside the trust field. More than one judge has ruled that the player contract "lacks mutuality," which, considering the A. G. Mills clause that reserves the player to one owner, it plainly does. But Lewis and Durante held that baseball could not exist without its legal flaws. They favored unwritten exemption. The sad truth today is that, since baseball people have proved that keeping out of court is too much for them, unwritten exemption will not do. Too many folks are talking. The old formula of public games and private law is no longer workable.

So the remaining alternatives are an overhauling of the system—to which, feasible or not, no baseball leader is on record as having given the slightest thought since 1880—or written exemption along the line proposed by the four congressmen last week. The second alternative raises a most significant question: Who, and what, would be exempted?

A Wet Nurse Might Do

Baseball (and possibly other sports as well) would be exempted, say the congressmen. Baseball, they suggest, is a national institution. Well, no one who has studied the history of baseball's impact on American thought and speech, especially in the years of its surging growth between the Civil War and the First World War when it was played by boys and men everywhere, in yards and fields as well as ball parks, can deny that the game is a national institution. But the congressmen do not exactly mean baseball, the "game," in this connection, though they may intend to. They mean a highly limited (and probably illegal) branch of the entertainment industry.

Are a handful of club owners, and their business profits, a national institution? It seems a bit whimsical to say so, and I doubt if the owners themselves, many of whom are honest, patriotic fellows, would care to have it put in just that way. In short, will they be comfortable running their part of an American ritual in a privileged and un-American style?

Don't say, "Durn right, they will." That would be rude. Give them time to break a 70-year-old habit and do some hard thinking. There must be a way to have pennant races that are both open and constitutional.

COMMANDOS WIN

Ted Menzies Named Nanaimo Boxla Coach

The headaches have all been handed to Ted Menzies. The ebullient Nanaimo boxla official, who gave Victoria credit for a four-man team prior to Wednesday's game here, has been handed the reins which make the Nanaimo Native Sons "gee" and "haw."

After releasing the news that Ed Gilmore had been appointed to replace Lloyd Steele as coach of the up-lidars, Menzies found himself ensconced in that role when the executive insisted. He started the season as manager of the team brought a grin to the face of "Snowshoe" Ferguson, who will lead his Shamrocks to Nanaimo tomorrow night for their second meeting this week.

Fergie derived considerable satisfaction from the 'Rocks' 18-to-4 victory here Wednesday after the needling by Menzies before the game.

A large crowd of Victoria fans are expected to accompany the Irish on the Booster Special tomorrow night. Earl Pollock said this morning that there was still room for more and reservations should be made today.

WESTMINSTER WINS

The Victorians were made more secure atop the Inter-city Lacrosse totem pole last night when the New Westminster Commandos trampled the Vancouver Combines 16 to 12, the Commandos' fourth win over the Cavalin crew in as many meetings. The Royal City team can climb into a first-place tie with the 'Rocks if they win over North Shore Indians at Vancouver tomorrow night.

Veterans Alfie Wood, Jake Proctor and Ralph Douglas gave Combines an early shock treatment and Commandos a 4-0 lead after only 2:30 of play. Wood, who played an outstanding game, pumped in two of the goals.

Soldiers Drub Roofing Nine

Firing salvos of heavy artillery in every inning, 119 Battery almost annihilated Sidney Roofing in scoring a 24 to 1 win in Senior C men's softball action last night. The army nine picked up a total of 24 hits in the game and scored 15 runs in the first three innings. The roofers got their only run in the eighth.

Ready For Important Match With Fulham

Whipping through drills and ball-control practice under the critical eye of manager Tommy Restell Wednesday were these candidates for the all star soccer squad which will meet Fulham June 7. Left to right, John Pickburn, Cedric Robb, Herman Henry, Joe Travis, Ken Williams, Don McGee, Bob Allen, Denny McGee, Bill Walker, Ab Travis and Tim Walker. Probables will meet Possibles in a game at Macdonald Park at 2:30 Saturday.

Students Grab Lead In Close Softball Race

Important Game Billed Tonight

All the excitement in last night's senior A men's softball game came in the ninth inning as Chinese Students moved into first place by out-scrambling Pitzer & Nex 10 to 9.

The game reached its climax when Quinton Mar led off in the bottom of the ninth with a ground rule double down the first-base line. Jack Okell batting for Bung Derr bounced into an out, short to first, and Mar moved up to third on the play.

Gordy Chow then lined out to centre-fielder Vic Dale. Dale made the catch but had no chance to catch Mar at home, as he crossed the platter to break a 9 to 9 tie.

SLOPPY PERFORMANCE

Up until then the game was a repetition of what has been going on through the season this far—lots of walks (14 to be exact) and a total of 11 errors. On two occasions sure pop-ups were dropped while Bernie Clarkson had a rough time in the infield for the Gasmen as he committed three errors.

Ed Fong started on the mound for the Students and was in trouble in the second inning as he lost control and gave up four runs on only one hit.

Coupled with a singleton in the first inning the Gasmen managed to tie up the game at 5 to 5 going into the bottom of the second.

In the Students' half of the initial inning they scored five times as Ab Wiebe reverted to his buzz-ball style of pitching and was just missing the corners. Norm Martin came in to replace Wiebe in the first after two were out and went the rest of the way.

Students scored twice in the bottom of the second to move ahead 7 to 5, and were leading 9 to 6 in the sixth when Fong bumped into trouble and Pitzer and Nex knotted the count.

Veteran Stan Tenning got up off the bench and finished out the game to pick up his fourth win of the season against no games.

IN COURT

SAANICH

Gnr. Merton L. Conrade, Gordon Head Camp, serving a 14-day jail term for driving a car while drunk after forcibly taking it away from a taxi-driver, was fined $25 for failing to have a current year's driver's license.

Richard H. Willoughby, 3136 Highway Street, was remanded to June 7 for judgment on a dangerous driving charge.

Mrs. W. C. Allan, Box 2377 Beryl Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of depositing rubbish on a street and was fined $5.

Frederick B. Woodcock, Rainbow Road, pleaded not guilty to a dangerous driving charge and was remanded to June 7 for trial.

Trial of Hans M. Myhre, 610 McKenzie Avenue, on a charge of careless driving was adjourned to June 7.

Pleading guilty to a charge of driving a car without a 1951 driver's license, Gnr. Howard Staples, Gordon Head Army Camp, was fined $25.

Louise Stentford, 906 Lavender Avenue, pleaded not guilty to a charge of harboring a vicious dog and was remanded to June 7 for trial.

John W. Miller, 976 McKenzie Avenue, and Jack J. Cramer, 229 Cadillac Avenue, were each fined $5 for failing to pay hospital insurance premiums by the due date.

At the request of Mrs. Loretta Todd, Magistrate H. C. Hall withdrew the charge of assault she had laid against her husband, Orville W. Todd. She was charged $5 costs.

PENSION FIGHT JOINED

Opposition Members Allege 'Means Test'

OTTAWA (CP)—The war pensions fight has blown up into the biggest Parliamentary battle over veterans' legislation in the last three years and one of the biggest since the war.

It was carried to new lengths Thursday when the three parties in Opposition turned two meetings of the Commons' veterans committee into more than four hours of debate concerning a government proposal to help a minority of war pensioners who can't work.

Indications in the end were that the government is liable to find itself asked one way or another to consider an across-the-board increase in war pension rates for the first time since 1948. Thursday's fight revolved around a motion by Col. A. J. Brooks (P.C. Royal, N.B.) which eventually was defeated by a recorded vote, 19 to 12. George Cruickshank (L.-Fraser Valley) joined members of the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F., and Social Credit parties in supporting Col. Brooks.

The gist of the argument is this: The government has proposed to pay war pensioners who can't work and can't get help through war veterans' allowances an "unemployability supplement" of $20 a month for single, $40 for married men.

The Opposition parties, backing a stand by the Canadian Legion, see this as a violation of the principle that pensions are awarded as of right, say it introduces a means test and should not be allowed to take priority over the real issue—an across-the-board increase for all pensioners.

INDIAN WOMEN FISH WORKERS DEMAND VOICE IN BARGAINING

BELLA BELLA (CP)—Mrs. Mary Hall, president of the Native Sisterhood of B.C., said today her group "is on strike how to demand an equal voice with the men in the running of our affairs."

The Indian women, cannery workers, netmakers and menders, now have no voice in the bargaining carried on in the fishing industry by the Native Brotherhood of B.C.

"We are on strike for equality and the vote—and we mean business," said Mrs. Hall.

The brotherhood bargains much as the fishermen's union does for white fishermen.

Tries To Justify Trade With Reds

LONDON (Reuters)—Trade Minister Sir Harcourt Shawcross Thursday defended Britain's continuing trade with Russia and other Communist countries.

He told the House of Commons that Soviet bloc countries had been getting substantial quantities of raw rubber and electrical generators from Britain in recent months.

In return Russia supplied Britain with one-fifth of its total timber and one-third of its total coarse grain imports, he said. Shawcross contended Britain was getting more economic and strategic advantages from this trade than the Communist bloc.

He disclosed Britain had exported 4,061 long tons of raw rubber to Russia, 109 tons to Czechoslovakia and 84 tons to Hungary from January to April this year.

Between April 9—when rubber exports came under licensing control—and April 30, export licenses were issued for 2,400 tons to Russia and 115 tons to Czechoslovakia.

By ART STOTT

There's usually more pointing than point to what Joe North says. He stops you on the street, gets off some cryptic remark that leaves you baffled and emphasizes it with a prodding index finger stabbing the air close to your breastbone. Then he puckers his mouth into a Bronx cheer, twists his face into a pantomime wink and walks off.

You walk off, too, wondering. You have the feeling that Joe has caught somebody trying to put something over on him. Who it is or what he tried, you never do find out. Joe produces mysterious inside riddles wrapped up in enigmas. Eventually you reach the point when you meet him, that you just say, "Hiya Joe," drop the "waddya know," and keep going.

YOU HAVE TO BE an old-timer to remember Victoria without Joe North in a bowler hat. You can run back to those amazing days when he was a police commissioner and his bowler was a figurative, though inadequate, defence against the blows of adversity.

You can probe beyond to an era when he drove around town in a horse-drawn rig—even then wearing a bowler—intoning: "There'll be a baseball game at the Athletic Park at 2 p.m. today." Or you can come up to more recent times when the rattle of his collection cans sounded above the buzzing murmur of beer parlors while he gathered dimes and quarters for the old folks or the kids.

You can have your own opinions of Joe and Joe isn't one to worry too much about that. He'll treat your views to a Bronx cheer or a wink, or both, and you'll never be quite sure whether he agrees with you or not. Mostly he doesn't. He's an individualist.

WHEN SOME IDEA rides him too hard, he'll hire a hall to talk about it. The other day he threatened to do just that because the city passed a resolution banning him from collecting silver and bills along the May 24th parade route. The Solarium, to which he turned over proceeds, wrote thank-you letters to the papers, but the city fathers don't like this independent, unorganized means of soliciting.

Charity and good deeds, it seems, have to be organized these days. There has to be an assumption of responsibility, committees, staffs, regular campaigns and, generally, overhead expenses. Joe doesn't see it that way. Joe has grasped a vision, or maybe has kept a vision, only dimly perceived by himself, of a community—his community as much as any one else's in this town—that is a little more care-free and care-less, a little more generous and open-handed, than the times seem to be able to cope with.

IT'S THE KIND of attitude you imagine might have prevailed when Victoria was a roaring town, the starting point for a frontier province. You sense a sort of warm-heartedness about it, an unwillingness to keep financial accounts, a readiness to help the other guy because he might not have been quite so fortunate as his fellows.

It's the spirit of a rough diamond age, when a man dug into his pocket for a coin to give to somebody down on his luck, thinking as he gave that "There, but for the grace of God, go I."

You remember gifts like that brought no receipts. They couldn't be computed in income tax returns for deduction purposes. They were just given—and the chances were that even if the recipient looked hungry, the coin went for another drink or two instead of a meal.

In the orderliness of the present day, you see the inefficiency of such ways. You hear of the snide tricks of dishonest people who collect large sums for some supposed worthy cause and pocket the returns themselves—pocket them, or enough of them, to defeat the entire spirit of charity.

YOU HEAR OF other apparently reputable agencies, like the one back east with so great an overhead that it could send crumbs only to Britain from the sums it gathered in Canada.

All Joe needs to bring in money for here-at-home needs is a bowler hat and a blanket; that, and a somewhat rugged approach to prospective donors. When his boys went around at the 24th, they stopped before an aged Chinese on the parade route and demanded a contribution. The elderly man, who didn't seem clear in his own mind what it was all about, and who probably thought it was a new form of collecting. Herb Anscomb's tax dug into his purse and gave.

NOT ONE CHARGE

Smoke Nuisance By-Law Useless

City authorities wrestling with the increasing problem of smoke control today revealed there has not been a single smoke nuisance charge laid in the city since the present smoke nuisance law was enacted seven years ago.

City Solicitor A. J. Patton confirmed the admission.

Mr. Patton said one reason for the apparent lack of action in the matter was the difficulty of enforcing the current law.

"The only way you can get a conviction is to stand at the top of a chimney and see if there is any solid matter coming out," he said.

said. "If you try and do that from the ground there is always an intervening chimney, and you must have specific evidence from a certain chimney to lay a charge."

He said years ago there was one conviction against a mill under the old by-law repealed by the present law.

According to Fire Department officials check-ups have been made regularly, and orders issued to improve faulty chimneys and screens.

"Charges just wouldn't stand up," one officer said regarding the smoke situation.

Both city and mill officials concerned with the problem feel that co-operation between industry and the city is the best answer.

To this end city fire wardens have invited mill and factory operators to meet with them Thursday morning at 9.30 at the City Hall.

"I hope something can be done as soon as possible," Acting-Mayor J. D. Hunter said today. "It's a difficult problem, but the committee under Ald. Frank G. Mulliney is investigating the whole matter."

Today the acting mayor received a letter from Victoria Horticultural Society complaining that smoke conditions tend to discourage the practice of horticulture.

Transportation committee of city council today agreed to defer action on the proposed parking restrictions report of Sgt. Brooke Douglass, head of city police traffic division.

Action was requested by Robert Doble, head of traffic survey section, to permit matters raised to be included in his overall survey plan.

"There is much in this report which is of value," he said.

The committee turned down a request from Victoria Automobile Club asking that Mr. Doble be permitted to address service clubs in a public education program regarding traffic, until his report is received by the committee.

From there, the women will be posted to various establishments to enter into various phases of ground work.

Women being recruited must be single, and between 18 and 29 years of age, unless former W.D.s, and then the age limit is 35. A Grade 10 education is necessary.

His office has been flooded with applications and inquiries from women wanting to join the service since the recruiting drive for women was launched across the country Thursday.

About 50 of the applicants have been given their medical examinations already and the first six enlistees are expected to be sworn in tomorrow.

Recruits accepted during the month will be on leave without pay until July 5 when all will be sent together to the centre at St.

Announce Schedule

With the introduction of the 40-hour working week on Canadian railways, the C.P.R. ticket office here will be closed every Saturday and Sunday, it is announced. The Canadian Pacific wharf ticket office will remain open over week-ends, however, to handle passenger requirements for rail and steamship transportation. The express office on the wharf will also be open.

Funeral Notice

Members of the Pio Patria Club, Canadian Legion, B.E.S. and the Women's Auxiliary, are requested to attend the funeral of our late Comrade Albert E. Holmes at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel on Saturday, June 2, at 2.15.

AMORITA

Amorita Well Ahead In Swiftsure Yacht Race

First boats to finish the 126-mile race to and from Swiftsure Lightship, off Cape Flattery, are expected to cross the finish line off the end of the breakwater some time this evening.

The favorite, Amorita, owned and sailed by Dr. Carl Jensen of Seattle, was leading early this morning and was given a good chance by observers to finish first.

The Amorita was first around the Swiftsure light station and at 6 this morning was 10 miles inbound.

H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie, whose only report was filed at 6 a.m., sighted Nautilus III in second place and Dorade third. Two miles behind were Alotia, Bucaneer, H. A. Wallace's Victoria entry; Maruffa and Angelica.

Other boats at that time had not rounded the Swiftsure station.

MALDEN, Mass. (UP)—Frank H. (Dad) Sargent, 86-year-old Boy Scout, spent a week-end camping with members of Malden Troop 14 at a camp named after him.

Sargent, a retired express company paymaster and oldest member of the troop, joined the other scouts in chopping wood.

Spring Clean-Up On C.P.R. Ships

The C.P.R.'s Princess Patricia has returned to the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle run after four days in port here being painted and spruced up in preparation for the heavy summer tourist season.

Now the Princess Marguerite has come off the run for the same treatment and for certain repairs to her boilers.

The two ships will carry thousands of United States visitors to this port during the next four months.

The Kathleen will stay on the Victoria-to-Vancouver run until the middle of next week and then will prepare for her own special run, taking two-week vacationists from Vancouver to Alaska.

Field Refuses To Explain His Surprise Move

Denial of any split on the arena commission was contained in a letter of resignation from Commissioner Richard C. Field, which he brought personally today to Acting-Mayor J. D. Hunter at City Hall.

Mr. Field still had one year of a two-year term to run. Announcement of his resignation came after a commission meeting Thursday night.

He gave no reason for resignation in his two-paragraph letter, dated today and released by Acting-Mayor Hunter, which reads:

"I regret at this time that I find it necessary to tender to you my resignation as a member of the arena commission. I would like to express my appreciation of the honor that was conferred on me in my being appointed to the commission."

"I would further stress that my term of office has been a most happy one, and at all times the commission has worked in complete harmony and that all decisions and agreements arrived at were entirely unanimous. Our work has been greatly lightened by the sympathetic co-operation of your council, the public and the press."

NO COMMENT

Mr. Field would not comment on a report that an earlier letter, had been sent to City Hall by himself and withdrawn.

His resignation came on the heels of a reported "split" in commission ranks, which was briefly aired at a recent City Council meeting.

At the meeting, aldermen elected J. Carl Pendray and Leonard Woodhouse, dropping Fred N. Cabeldu, present chairman, and William Bridgewood, George I. Warren was re-elected.

WATSON TO STAY

When asked today if he would continue to serve on the commission, Henry Watson replied: "My position remains the same. I have no intention of resigning."

Following the commission meeting Thursday night, Mr. Cabeldu issued a statement assuring the public there was "no split" on the commission. He, too, said final decisions had always been unanimous.

He said that the commission had made no "final agreement" with the Victoria Hockey Club.

$35 TRAFFIC FINE

Robert W. Martindale, 1314 Balmoral, was fined $35 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving arising from an accident on May 19.

A weather-weary Minneapolis resident commented bitterly that "In Minnesota, summer's on Wednesday. It was on Tuesday last year."

OAK BAY GARDENERS ON HONOR WATERING SYSTEM

Oak Bay residents will be put on their honor this year to water their gardens only three times a week, except on Sundays, A. S. G. Musgrave, municipal engineer, said today.

Municipal council decided that rather than set specific days for householders to water, as has been the custom in the past, each gardener will be left to decide which three week days he wants to water.

"If the voluntary system is not observed, compulsory regulations will again have to be put in force," Mr. Musgrave declared.

Greater Victoria Census Count To Open Monday

Marching orders were given today for Canada's army of 18,000 census-takers but some will not begin their rounds until Monday morning, it was indicated.

The count started in some lower island areas this morning, but Arthur Burns, Greater Victoria census head, said enumerators working out of his office would not start before Monday.

Seventy-five enumerators for Victoria area were being given final instructions this afternoon to count the populace and get answers to all questions.

The road work is expected to be completed in about a month with completion of results ready for study by October.

Two years of planning and $9,000,000 have been poured into the job.

SPECIAL PENS

Special pens, filled with ink which conducts electricity, have been passed out to the army to mark the individual population cards.

Intricate electronic machines, in Ottawa and in some of the other major cities, have been set up to "read" the cards and record the tabulations in electronic "brains."

The census-takers have been told all of the fine points about meeting the public, how not to get a housewife angry, how to get all of the information needed, and how to be firm when the head of the house begins to hem and haw.

Persons who hold back information are liable to court action, but the census-takers haven't been told to threaten prosecution.

ESKIMOS COUNTED

All Canadians will be recorded. Mounties on patrol have visited the Eskimos already.

No one will be missed. Wednesday has been set here as "T night" when enumerators will visit hostels and other similar places to count transients.

New Junction Traffic Plan

City Council, Tuesday, will be asked to rescind its last year's motion on a "no-left-hand-turn" traffic plan for Oak Bay Junction and give a try-out to a plan of Robert Doble, traffic survey chief.

Mr. Doble's recommendation approved at a transportation committee meeting today would control traffic as it is now, but with the addition of traffic lanes and a centre-suspended, four-face, three-color signal light.

Traffic congestion at the Junction has been a subject of council debate for years and several petitions have been presented by residents at various times, calling for action.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Now You Can Have Mitts To Match Bath Towels!

By PENNY SAVER

In the world of fashion, it's a must that you have matching or contrasting accessories to wear with your ensembles. In the world of bath towels it's just as attractive. Mind, I don't mean you're to wear the towel, a la sarong style, but you can certainly wear the new bath mitts... and for double duty.

The mitts are of that tubbable pleasing-to-use terry cloth.

For use in the tub or shower, the mitts perform the duty of the wash cloth with added luxury of having the cloth on hand... a pun there, somewhere... when most needed.

For '79 pennies you have choices of pastel blues, greens, pinks and carnation red.

If you're the born wash-cloth user, and you'll not have anything to do with the new idea, then the mitts will serve in the kitchen. The mitts, strongly bound in tape, will take hold of any hot, pan handle and come back for more.

To market to market with a fine shopping bag in hand... and dressy, too. They're the new raffia bags designed with sturdy handles, and appliqued raffia flower designs. They wear well, for a friend of mine has given hers a great deal of hard use in her daily jaunts to the city, and it has remained in good condition. For the bright and cheerful shopping equipment you'll need $1.39.

Soft as a kitten's ear and light as a bee's wing is a polishing and cleaning cloth. I found today. I imagine, you could slip the duster along the furniture and household gadgets at jet speed with this type of dusting cloth.

In each package you'll find three, double yards of material and a price tag of 29 pennies. By the way, that same dusting cloth takes its place in the glove compartment of your worthy auto, very nicely.

If Junior hasn't already set up a lemonade stand of his own... he probably bounces into the house every so often with a desert thirst in full swing. That's where a nice bit of lemon "brew" comes in handy.

With a tin of lemonade or tasty citrus punch, already sweetened, you add ice and five tins of water to the one tin of juice. There'll be enough in that 19-cent tin to make up a bathtub full of the stuff... well, not quite, but almost.

While we're on the subject of juices there's a very fine prune nectar available in good quantity.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

If Grey Hair Abases You Dye It To Natural Color

(The Friday Question Box) I think it will be fun to give some of the questions and answers which occurred following a lecture I gave recently. At the end of such an occasion I always throw the meeting open for individual questions from the audience.

Q—"Shall I dye my hair?" This question came from a very attractive woman with a youthful face and no lines, and a very pretty skin, but completely grey hair.

A—This is an individual matter. If you are worried about it, if it makes you feel older, then do something about it. Actually, so far as I can see, it is really becoming. You have a really lovely transparent skin and I think the grey hair is becoming but if it does anything negative to you, have it dyed a shade lighter than its original coloring.

Today dye jobs are expert artistry. Just remember that once you start on this road, it will take a lot of time and money for upkeep. Nothing looks worse than a neglected dye job when the first quarter inch of hair is a different color from the rest of it.

Q—"Why do so many women who lose weight look so old? Their faces seem to collapse."

A—They reduce too rapidly and probably without the benefit of exercise, which firms contour, and without giving the skin a chance to shrink to fit the circumstance. It won't hurt anyone to lose from five to 10 pounds in nine days time. But, if you have 20 or 30 or more pounds to lose you will be wise to do it gradually. You will also be wise to be very careful about skin lubrication and to exercise as you lose in pounds.

Q—"How do you reduce the upper arm?"

A—This is a difficult spot to reduce. I have found one exercise which is efficient. Raise your arms forward, shoulder height and shoulder width apart, in a relaxed manner, palms facing. Now—swing the arms down and back hard—palms facing the back of the room. Continue, raising the arms forward and swinging them back. Do this 50 times morning and 50 times at night, and increase until you are doing this exercise 100 times morning and night.

Friends Meet Again At Oak Bay Hotel Tea

Miss M. Plunkett, president, Royal Jubilee Hospital Alumnae Association, left, with Miss H. McLeod and Miss F. Ferguson of the alumnae and Miss E. Rossiter, president of the alumnae branch in Vancouver, at reunion tea yesterday afternoon. To day members of the alumnae and this year's graduating class at the hospital were entertained by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor at an afternoon reception at Government House.

MARY HAWORTH

Unfaithful Husband; Psychiatrist Non-Committal, Friend Says 'Raise The Roof'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband is affiliated with a large university. He is 36, I am 31, we have been married 11 years and have three children. I was very happily married until two years ago, when traces of lipstick and perfume on Stan's shirt caused me to question him; and he admitted having been seriously involved with a woman co-worker for about a year. It was a very severe blow to my idealistic nature.

As Miss X isn't financially dependent upon her job, Stan promised me she would resign when her contract expired in six months; and he promised me also that he'd never go near her again. Needless to say, he didn't keep his promise, though I think he tried; and she didn't resign. Stan said there was no need of it, as they had "worked things out." Since then I've checked, double-checked, snooped and spied; and have been utterly miserable because of my lost faith in him. They have ample excuse to be locked up together, doing secret government research.

However, my biggest heart-break and problem is this: Since Stan's infidelity he hasn't said he loves me. On the few occasions when I've asked, he says he doesn't know what love is; and that I attach too much importance to the expression, "I love you." He also is certain that our marriage is typical of all others after 10 years; and he doesn't want a divorce. He loves his home and children and they adore him.

I consulted a psychiatrist a few months ago, who listened to my story, but would give neither sympathy nor advice until he had talked with Stan—who refused to go, on the grounds that we cannot afford the fees. Finally I confided in a dear friend, wife of a specialist, who urges me to write you. She says I should have raised the roof two years ago, and moved into the guest room.

MATURE EXPERIENCE INCLUDES INSECURITY

Dear S. J.: "You are struggling defensively against the taxes of close relationship—and that is a losing struggle, if fought blindly. There cannot be psychological intimacy and mutual dependency in human relations, without some disappointments, penalties and betrayals. But human closeness one must have, in order to live rationally, and human imperfections in oneself aren't overcome by running away; nor are they erased in the partner by rejecting him. The potential cure consists in growth—growth of awareness, of understanding, of charity as defined in 1 Corinthians 13.

Americans Entertain City Guides

At invitation of American Girl Scouts a group of Victoria Girl Guides attended Port Townsend centennial recently where they took part in the centennial pageant and represented Canada with the Union Jack.

During festivities, Guides were entertained at Scout-Guide breakfast and were taken on tours through Port Angeles schools and an American Coast Guard vessel.

The Guides also attended Port Townsend fair.

Exhibition Under Way

Plans for annual national exhibition of hand weaving to be held in the Empress Hotel in July are well advanced, it was reported by convener, Mrs. Sydney Pickles, at recent meeting of Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild.

It is expected that Hon. W. T. Strath, Minister of Education, will open the exhibition.

Arrangements are being made to have looms in operation showing the process of weaving, also demonstrations of making yarn with spinning wheels. Eighty weaving guilds of Newfoundland are joining to send a representative exhibit and there will be exhibits from other guilds in other provinces.

Mrs. J. L. White read a letter from Mrs. Francis Clark, a member now in Britain, describing her visit to Textile Exhibition in London.

It was announced that articles for the exhibition in July must be in the hands of standards committee for judging not later than June 26.

Mrs. Hodson, president, gave a talk on "Standards" and urged members to show as much of their work as possible so the local club would be well represented.

United Church W.M.S. Shows Revenue Gain

TORONTO (CP).—Revenue of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was $1,044,446 in 1950, Mrs. J. R. Seaman, treasurer, reported at the Dominion board annual meeting.

Contributions from all branches exceeded their allocations and with one exception showed larger gifts than in 1949.

Total expenditures were $1,002,726, an increase of $33,265 over 1949. They included $543,358 for overseas missions and $257,560 on home missions. Pensions and bonuses to retired missionaries required $26,742 and scholarships $15,392. Medical expenses and training for missionaries took $26,857.

Date Changed

Annual home-coming for graduates of St. Joseph's Hospital and annual meeting of the Alumnae has had date changed so that now it will be held June 13, at 7:30, in the Nurses' Home.

Secret Of Longevity

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The secret of longevity is to eat potatoes with their skins on, Mrs. Priscilla A. Elsie of London, says.

She ought to know. She'll be 100 on Sunday.

In good spirits and health although here eyesight and hearing are failing a little, Mrs. Elsie still takes an active interest in things around her.

She was born at nearby Lambeth and has lived in the London district all her life.

I.O.D.E. Scholarships For Single Students

SASKATOON (CP)—Candidates for First World War Memorial Scholarships of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire may be men or women who must remain single during the tenure of the scholarships. This recommendation today was approved by the 51st annual meeting of the I.O.D.E.

The policy of receiving applications for them every year will be continued.

The first recommendation was to clear an ambiguous clause revised in 1947 to permit veterans who had married during the Second World War to take advantage of the awards.

First Woman Teacher At High

The late Agnes Deans Cameron.

Seventy-fifth anniversary of Victoria High School, being celebrated this week-end, brings memories of outstanding women who worked tirelessly for the public good before the turn of the century.

None were more brilliant than Miss Agnes Deans Cameron, first woman teacher in Victoria High, whose outstanding career was cut short through complications arising from an appendicitis operation.

At the time of her death in May, 1912, she had given up her teaching career and was devoting her time to traveling and writing, chiefly in the interests of British Columbia.

Born in Victoria on December 20, 1863, daughter of pioneers Duncan and Jessie Cameron, she attended public school here and, at the age of 18 began teaching.

St. Nicholas' Church In Vancouver Scene Of White-McNicol Wedding

In the presence of many Victoria guests assembled in St. Nicholas' Church, Vancouver, Lilla May White repeated nuptial vows with Loyd Harvey McNicol.

Rev. L. T. Hipp united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry White and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. McNicol. A bridal veil worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day, misted over the wedding gown of gleaming white satin styled with lily point sleeves, yoke of exquisite Chantilly lace, Peter Pan collar, rolled V-shaped neckline and softly flaring skirt. Her bouquet was of heather, wine-tipped orchids, lilies and stocks. Her father gave her in marriage.

Gowns of butter yellow, green and delicate mauve moire taffeta were worn by bridal attendants Mrs. Dorothy Lister, Miss Lois Foster, Victoria, the bride's sister, Miss Myra White and Karel McNicol, sister of the groom. Matching lace boleros completed their ensembles.

Ron McNicol, was best man and Donn McNicol and Douglas Hull, ushers.

G. F. Bullock, formerly of Victoria, proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in Hastings Community Hall.

For traveling to this city and later to Seattle, the bride chose a going-away ensemble of a three-piece tailored grey tulle, cherry red purse and shoes, white straw hat, white gloves and orchid corsage bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. McNicol will make their home in Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kerr On Honeymoon In Mexico

A home in this city following their honeymoon in Mexico is the plan of the new Mr. and Mrs. George Kerr, who repeated vows before Dr. A. E. Whitehouse recently in Metropolitan United Church.

The bride is the former Hilda Eleanor, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Grigg, 1044 Redfern Street, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Kerr of Ladysmith, V.I.

Sisters of the bride, Mrs. J. Cameron, matron of honor, and Mrs. D. Thornhill, with Miss Gloria Kenyon, wore gowns of taffeta and satin in shades of powder blue, peach and palest green. With their gowns they wore matching bandeaux of fresh flowers and bouquets of harmonizing flowers.

Malcom Kerr was best man for his brother and George Brown and Len Lymbery were ushers.

Parents of the newlyweds assisted in receiving guests at a reception given in O.E.S. Hall where bride's table was centred with three-tier cake. Dr. Whitehouse proposed the toast.

For the honeymoon trip the bride donned a skipper blue gabardine suit, white straw hat, white accessories and roses en corsage.

The bride chose her groom's gift of an opal necklace to wear with her wedding gown of white satin fashioned with nylon net

Memorial Service

At the memorial service to be conducted by I.O.G.E., Sunday at 3, at the Cross of Sacrifice, Ross Bay Cemetery, Rev. J. L. W. McLean will officiate.

A Victoria city will be represented by Alderman R. P. Macmillan, who will lay a wreath on the memorial cross. Also laying wreaths will be Mrs. J. L. Gates, provincial vice-president, Mrs. C. L. Bishop, municipal regent, and representatives from 14 local chapters and two junior chapters.

Sixteen standard bearers dressed in white will act as guard of honor and each soldier's grave will be decorated with the Union Jack.

Mrs. J. T. A. Fox, municipal ex-service personnel convener, is in charge of arrangements and Mrs. W. L. Williams, provincial ex-service personnel convener, will be in attendance.

Big Business Pays Big For Big Men

By HARRY YOUNG, TIMES BUSINESS EDITOR

One of Canada's economic problems is to keep its brightest young men from proceeding to jobs in the United States. No particularly bright Canadian university student is likely to pass out without receiving at least one attractive offer from south of the border.

It gives you a pretty good idea why the U.S. is so attractive when you look at some of the salaries and bonuses it holds out to big business executives.

Young
him the highest paid executive, not only in the United States, but, inevitably, in the world.

There's that fellow Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors. Last year, Mr. Wilson received a neat total of $632,156 for his leadership of the world's biggest corporation.

That made him the highest paid executive, not only in the United States, but, inevitably, in the world.

It may be some relief to know that Mr. Wilson did not get all this to spend. A cool $500,000 went to the United States treasury as income tax.

Mr. Wilson is not alone in General Motors munificence. Six more of his colleagues in 1950 received in salaries, bonuses and pensions more than $400,000 each.

Indeed Albert Bradley, the executive vice-president, has a $529,868 income which puts him third mostly highly paid executive in the world. Just ahead of him in second place is Crawford Greenwalt, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours. In 1950 his salary was hiked $100,000 to give him a total of $539,550.

But it wasn't every big shot in the States who could get 1950 so pleasant. Poor Louis B. Mayer, the motion-picture producer of Loew's, suffered a cut of $150,000 to make his personal earnings a mere $355,355.

Some of the other big pay men are Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, with $464,321; J. F. Drake, chairman of Gulf Oil, with $391,084; Linan Warren, president of Safeway Stores, with $367,754; and Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric, and now U.S. production boss, with $280,234.

Two new listings appear this month on Canadian stock exchanges. On Vancouver, the shares of Abitibi Pulp & Paper were put on the board for the first time.

Similarly in Toronto, Van Roil Consolidated will be listed for initial trading on Tuesday.

The Abitibi listing at Vancouver follows that firm's absorption of the B.C. Pulp and Paper Co., and its amalgamation with Alaska Pine.

Van Roil Consolidated is a base metal operation which has traded actively on Vancouver in recent months. It expects to start milling in August.

You are going to find your banker 1/2 per cent tougher if you happen to be borrowing from him on the security of a Dominion of Canada Bond. From today the Canadian banks are charging a half per cent interest on loans secured by high-class bonds. The previous rate was 3 1/2 per cent.

The increase is all part of the government's campaign to discourage borrowing.

Alberta To Take Higher Royalties

CALGARY (CP)—The Alberta says in a front page story today that crown royalties on Alberta oil production will be increased by order-in-council next Tuesday, retroactive to June 1.

Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of mines and minerals is quoted as the source of information.

According to the story the new royalties will be 12 1/2 per cent at production of about 50 barrels a day. They will be scaled down sharply from 50 to reach about five per cent at 25 barrels per day, and up from 50 to reach the maximum of 16 1/2 per cent at a rate of from 125 to 150 barrels daily.

Alberta Government officials said today there is no basis for reports the provincial government will make a decision on export of natural gas within the next 30 days.

Premier Border Find
A new ore body is announced by Premier Border. The seam is narrow, about 18 inches, but it is stated to be of rich quality, about $88 a ton. The content is stated to be 36 per cent lead, 7 per cent zinc, 41 oz. silver and .146 gold.

Premier Border now operating as a base metal mine is situated on the Portland Canal in northern B.C.

Over-Subscribed
Monarch Knitting Co. announces that the recent offering of common shares to its shareholders has been heavily over-subscribed. A total of 34,000 common shares was offered and 33,466 common shares were subscribed for under the rights, leaving 534 shares available for allotment to shareholders who subscribed for additional shares. The company received subscriptions for a total of 35,177 additional common shares, making total subscriptions of 68,643 common shares for the 34,000 shares offered.

XCIX

"Caroline — we were pretty close to each other at one time. But I thought you'd realized how little chance there was of us finding any lasting happiness. It's just as true today."

"Aren't you flatter yourself, Jervis? I merely spoke of an escort down to Frisco. After that..."

"After that you will require a manager, or a secretary. I've been intending to get out of jail, Caroline. I'm grateful to you for anticipating me — but my steps lie in another direction."

She hesitated a moment. Then she turned away from him, and walked back again to the white lace curtains at the window. The shaft of light had gone, now. Much of her own lustre seemed to have gone with it as she stood there, her back half-turned towards him, looking out into the street.

Watching her closely, he saw her part the curtains a little, and raise her hand as if to someone in the street below.

She turned back to him. "I thought you might have valued liberty a little higher while you had it, Jervis. I've just waved to your escort. He'll take you back again. The superintendent will be relieved that the examination took so short a time."

She knew, as well as he did, that once he was out in the street with a naval officer — even a bogus one — his chances of getting away would be negligible. The hue and cry would be immediate.

He started slowly back towards the door.

"I've a job to do that's more important than waiting for your friend, Caroline."

"If you should attack him when he comes in here, I'd simply call for help. That would be very ludicrous. Everybody knows me, and they're very loyal..."

Still facing her, he had reached the door now, and quietly placing a hand behind his back, he took out of the lock the key he had already seen there.

"The last thing I'd wish to do would be to embarrass you, Caroline. I'll be most respectful to your friend, I assure you..."

He stood away from the door — just in time for it to open from the outside.

The "Lieutenant-Commander"

came into the room... but lacked the histrionic talent of the woman who had sent for him. He walked at least four paces towards her, and in the time he took to do so, Brad was outside — and the door was locked again from the other side.

Caroline faced the young man in the naval uniform with her eyes blazing. Her mouth parted as if to call for help.

Then her mouth shut again. It would be so tactless to make a noise when she was locked in a bedroom at the St. Nicholas Hotel with a man whom she had only met a few days ago.

"In a place like this it's a good thing to keep well-occupied."

"But you were working all day yesterday, Amelia! And half the night. Thank the Lord the day after tomorrow's Sunday."

"And if the disciples plucked ears of corn on the Sabbath I don't see that it's over-bath to bake them then, too — not when so many men are so hungry."

Letty laughed at Amelia's determination. With a quick imitation of Caroline's voice she said "Mama would be horrified!" "And wouldn't speak for days!" Amelia went on kneading bread... lifting the flour-covered, rounded mass of dough, clenching her fists, sinking them deep into it again, one after the other.

"Will you see how those other loaves are getting on," she said. "Should be safe to take a look now, I reckon."

Letty picked up the cloth again and grasped the hot handle of the oven door. She opened it, letting out into the small kitchen the warm, appetizing smell of baking bread. The double row of loaves in there had swollen, in their round tins, into twin ranks of well-browned, floury domes.

"They can come out, now," Letty announced, and used the hem of her apron to slide the hot tray out into the kitchen. She began to pluck off the loaves and place them on the plain deal table on the other side of Amelia.

"How many does that make altogether?" Amelia asked, with out looking up from her kneading.

"Twelve."

"Good. Then they can go round to the 'Pioneer.' And tell Ned Carson he'll have some more before they open up this afternoon."

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

One of the bidding problems of the good player is what to do with a good hand in which there is no clear-cut partnership fit. Ordinarily you have to bid such hands tentatively. You may bid a suit or two of your own, then try no-trump, and perhaps show a delayed preference for partner's suit.

When an opponent steps into the auction, the situation changes. You can't safely bid no-trump without strength in the opponent's suit. If you have that strength however, why not double for penalties?

As a matter of fact, the penalty double may be in order even if you have very little in the opponent's suit. You may be able to take enough tricks in the side suits to make the enemy sorry they hadn't stayed at home.

The West cards of today's hand were held in a tournament some years ago by John C. Stabile, of Seattle. His decision to double two diamonds was considered unusual at that time, but in recent years more and more experts have adopted this kind of double.

It is unusual because West has neither a trump trick at diamonds nor even unusual diamond strength. West is merely strapping for a bid and doubles to show good defensive strength. East is expected to scramble out of the double if his hand is particularly bad for defensive play.

As it happened, East was reasonably satisfied to defend, and the contract of two diamonds was rather badly beaten. Stabile opened the ace of hearts, and continued with the

by Thornton W. Burgess

Peter Rabbit was almost in despair. He was hiding in a pool of water. Do you think that a queer place for him to be hiding? It was. It wouldn't have been a queer place for Jerry Muskrat, or Billy Mink, for they are as much at home in water as on land. But it was a queer place for Peter to be, and he didn't like it one bit. You see, while running away from Gray Fox he had slipped and fallen into that pool. Then because Gray Fox was so close behind him he hadn't dared come out. He was standing with just his wobbly, little nose out of water and this Gray Fox had not seen.

Gray Fox had run all around trying to find Peter's trail with that wonderful nose of his. He couldn't because Peter had run a little way in shallow water and water does not hold scent. Now Gray Fox was sitting back to Peter and very near. He was trying to think how Peter could have fooled him.

"B-r-r-r-r-r!" That water was cold. "I can't stay here much longer," thought Peter. "I just can't."

But Peter did stay. You see, he didn't dare move. Gray Fox just sat and sat. At long last he stood up as if about to leave. I suspect that Peter drew a long breath of relief. Once Gray Fox was out of sight Peter would leave that water in a hurry. He would run, lipperty-lipperty-lip, as only he can.

Why didn't Gray Fox leave? He was standing perfectly still with his ears set forward as if he had heard some distant sound and was listening for it to be repeated. A Merry Little Breeze came wandering up Laughing Brook and whispered in those pointed ears of Gray Fox. Peter

Train Supervisors For New Playfield

Volunteers for supervision of Maynard Park, Cadboro Bay, will be trained next month. It was announced last night at an organization meeting in St. George's Hall.

Through arrangements with Saanich Recreation Council, courses in supervision will be given June 4, 6, 8, 11, 13 and 15 at 617 1/2 Commercial Street from 8 to 10 p.m.

Executive named last night includes Mrs. W. D. Osborn, president; Mrs. John Buntin, vice-president; Mrs. Chauncey Martin, secretary, and Mrs. James Moreton and Mrs. Peter Holmes. The park, acquired through the efforts of a pioneer resident, Frank Hobbs, and gazetted in 1928, has a hard-surface tennis court. Plans call for badminton and volleyball courts and eventually a bowling green.

Park facilities will be available to children of Cadboro Bay, Queenswood and Ten Mile Point.

Pullman Charges Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—A general 15-per-cent increase in Pullman Company charges for sleeping and parlor car services went into effect at midnight (local time) last night. The company pleaded the need for rate revisions on the basis of higher operating costs.

What had he gone up there for? Peter wondered. In a moment or two he found out. There was a sniffing and snuffing and along the bank came Bowser the Hound. He had found the scent of Gray Fox where he had been running about looking for Peter and was following him.

Peter's heart sank. He couldn't get out of that pool of water yet. B-r-r-r-r-r! How cold it was!

Maria Palmer Doesn't Regret Being First To Plunge In TV

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—I had a session today with the first movie doll who crawled her name to a contract for a television film and the scene, I'm doubled up with joy to report, wasn't skid row or the bread line. It was a fancy Beverly Hills place where the tabs run high and twice the Johnson cheek was brushed with genuine silver blue milk.

Maria Palmer, the beauty who took a chance on TV, signed autographs for the waiter, a stout matron from Cleveland and a lad in a cowboy suit.

Maria, a Viennese dish with the coloring of paprika sprinkled on rich cream, flexed her aching wrist and said that she'd been riding high since she went in for video only.

She was being called "The Ingrid Bergman of TV."

She was right up on her income tax payments and nobody had slapped a lien on her mansion.

And bigger and better movie parts were coming her way. My hair would stand up at attention on my noggin, Maria said, at some of the finger-shaking that went on when she took the plunge into the parlor channels back in 1948 in a half-hour film titled, "The Necklace."

"People tried to talk me out of it," Maria whispered. "One of my close friends told me that he'd seen Claire Booth Luce on television and that she had looked like a monkey."

"My agents threw up their hands in disgust and said that Hollywood would never give me a job again. And an actress friend of mine—I won't mention her name—predicted that I would wind up as a car hop."

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

17 Govt. Agencies Cleared Film Of Wartime Germany

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Film Producer Frank McCarthy has just come through his greatest test: Getting approval for a feature film from 17 government agencies on two continents.

McCarthy is the producer of "Decision Before Dawn," a film of the Second World War as seen through German eyes. Among the agencies from which he had to get approval or co-operation: The U.S. State Department, Department of Defence, the German Federal Republic, the Allied High Commission, the Bavarian government and many others.

The project, which was to be filmed in actual German locales, at first got a turn-down by High Commissioner John M. McCloy in Germany. He reasoned: 1, photographs of German troops in the film might fall into Russian hands and be used as propaganda; 2, appearance of Germans in army uniforms might alarm the population.

McCarthy answered with these arguments: 1, the Russians could easily make their own propaganda photos of German troops if they wanted to; 2, there would be wide publicity that the troops would be used for a movie only. He won approval.

"Usually when you take a movie on locations, you try to keep it secret," Producer McCarthy related. "But we had to print in all the papers the news of our plans. Wherever he went, there were huge crowds."

"But they weren't like crowds in Italy or France or even our country. They were amazingly orderly. All you had to do was tell them where to stand and they would remain there. The German respect for authority is still deeply rooted."

JULIET'S VIRGIN COUCH AT HOME

Verona Wins Possession Of Relic

By CESARE BRUSINI

VERONA, Italy (AP)—The war between Verona and Vicenza over the theft of the bed of Juliet comes to an end this month.

The two rival cities have been on armed guard for a year or more, ever since a group from Verona stole Juliet's bed, a tourist drawing card at the medieval Castle of Montecchi, near Vicenza.

The thieves—later identified as university students from Verona left a note where the bed of Juliet had been. It said:

"I am fed up with spending my vacations in this damned burg and spending my night on this hard alcove. Romeo, too, complains all the time of such hardship. Therefore we return to Verona. Distinguished salutations."

The note written on a scroll, was signed in Gothic: "Giulietta Capuletti."

This was a climax in the war which had lasted for centuries, ever since William Shakespeare made famous the "Lovers of Verona" who actually happened to be born in nearby Vicenza—if they ever were born at all.

The abduction of Giulietta's bed led to a number of celebrations—in Verona at least. "Juliet is completely ours now" was the comment heard in the ancient city hall square. "She can sleep back home again, her bed is here. Boo! to the ugly Vicentine. . ."

Australia Wants More Canada Trade

TORONTO (CP)—Australians will push exports to Canada this year in an effort to reach trade parity, Colin MacKay, overseas representative of the Australia Wine Board, said Thursday.

Mr. MacKay is in Canada to attend the Canadian International Trade Fair and to promote trade with the provinces. He said Australia sold Canada $32,800,000 worth of goods last year. Its adverse trade balance with this country was $2,643,346.

Gable's Wife Asks Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)

Clark Gable was sued for divorce today by his wife, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley.

The widow of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. charged Gable, her husband of less than 18 months, with mental cruelty. She specified no particular instances.

Her lawyer, Jerry Giesler, said that doctors have advised her she needs a complete rest, and that she will leave tomorrow on an expedition to the South Seas with Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt. Gable has nothing to say.

Forest Fires Sweep Thousands Of Acres Of Ontario Timber

Fire at Lake Mattagami, Ont., has devastated thousands of acres of timberland. This aerial view shows extent of damage. Wall of flame swept along 15-mile front. Ten thousand acre fire today threatened region near Quebec border. In all, there were 48 forest fires raging unchecked, but most were brought under control after rain. Airlift ferried 400 fire fighters in answer to emergency calls and 600 men fought flames in desperate effort to halt outbreak. (S.N.S. Photo.)

Fire Department Opens Drive Against Hazards

A fireman will visit every home in Greater Victoria during the course of a drive, started today by fire chiefs of all municipalities to rid homes of fire hazards. The drive is held in conjunction with a campaign sponsored by the International Association of Fire Chiefs and supported by other national conventions to cut the annual fire toll of life and property. Calling at homes, firemen will assist householders to check common hazards. Fire departments will keep complete records of every fire and its cause, to discover the worst home hazards. "Householders will then be in a better position to protect their homes against fire," said Victoria Fire Chief Robert T. Brindle.

DOCTOR SAYS

By Dr. Edwin P. Jordan

It may seem early to start thinking about what to do for fall hay fever, but August rolls around pretty fast and those who put off planning about this unpleasant ailment will wish they hadn't.

There are two reasons for thinking about what to do for fall hay fever now. Those who plan to take the injections should start soon if they want to get much benefit from them. Those who hope to escape exposure to ragweed pollen by taking their vacations in some favorable spot ought to decide where they are going before the rush starts.

There is first the question of injections. These consist of increasing doses of the pollens to which the individual is sensitive—usually one or more of the ragweeds—for those with fall hay fever. The aim of this is to lessen the sensitivity so that when the pollens arrive in the air the hay fever sufferer will not react so violently. But it takes time to build up the dose in the injections and for that reason they have to be started some time before the season begins.

What can be expected from the injections? The results vary all the way from complete relief to no apparent improvement at all. In most, the results are in between these two extremes.

In other words, the majority are helped some but still have trouble, especially when the pollen count gets high. My own experience on taking the injections for many years was a gradual decrease in the severity of the symptoms to a point where I had so little trouble that I finally stopped taking injections entirely.

Mrs. W.S. writes saying that she has had ragweed type hay fever for 20 years, has had asthma for the last 10, usually ends the season with a bad cold, and last year narrowly escaped pneumonia. She said she had never taken injections and wondered if they might be helpful after such a long time.

Of course, she must get the answer from her own physician, but the possibility that injections would help her rather serious condition would certainly have to be carefully considered. If she is to try them this year, however, there is no doubt that they should be started as soon as possible.

Whaler at V.M.D. For Rush Repairs

Hurried repairs to the bottom and propellers of the whaler Thasis Chief are being carried out by workers at Victoria Machinery Depot in an effort to have the ship on her way to the whaling grounds by Saturday.

The Thasis Chief arrived here Thursday, after having killed 14 whales in less than a month. The whale operates out of Coal Harbour on Quatsino Sound.

No Harm In Using Fingers To Learn Early Arithmetic

PITTSBURGH (UP)—If your youngsters are inclined to use their fingers or toes when learning arithmetic, let 'em, and don't worry about it.

That's what Robert H. Koenker, associate professor of education and director of graduate studies at Ball State Teachers College, Muncie, Ind., advises.

At a convention of mathematics teachers here, Koenker said it's important for children to have a "crutch" in learning arithmetic. Whether it turns out to be their fingers, toes, pulling an ear or tapping a foot, they will grow out of it, Koenker said.

Learning by drill alone in parrot fashion is ineffective, he pointed out, unless the child first knows the meaning of the problem—that the five fingers on each of his hands add up to 10, for instance.

"Give him something concrete before you go to the abstract," Koenker urged.

Examples out of every-day living are best, Koenker said. It helps eliminate housewives who make enough to feed three families, because they don't know how to cut a recipe in half.

New Inventions: Mower And Match

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—A lawnmower with a rear-wheel drive and a full differential system is the latest thing unless you count the Saf-T-fire mechanical match lighter.

Both are Summer instruments. The reel-type lawn mower breezes along much closer to the hedge or the fence than other power-type mowers can make it, and in addition can be pushed if the space is exceptionally tight.

The match lighter is a gadget that keeps the picnic and the backyard barbecue from inserting his arm full length under a pile of wood to light it.

It's a rod with a built-in striking plate into which a match is inserted. Shove the rod with the match to the proper place under the kindling and drop an attached weight. Gingo! the match lights under the strategic spot and the whole rod is withdrawn.

Receives Degree

Ronald Ritchie Bonnell, Victoria, will receive his M.D. degree tomorrow at the Queen's University convocation in Kingston.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Bonnell, 1522 Fell Street, he will join the Royal Jubilee Hospital staff July 1 as an interne.

Others who passed their spring examinations included Eleanor W. Miller, Victoria, fourth year; Betty Cecilia Chinn, Victoria, third year, and George Francis Roseborough, Port Alberni.

Ask For Report

Finance committee has referred a proposal of Mrs. Barbara Green to distribute surplus foodstuffs at the public market after hours to those in need, to the city's welfare committee for report.

Mrs. Green had applied to finance committee for permission to use a market stall.

Seamen Balloting On New Wage Offer

Eight hundred members of the Seafarers' International Union, employed on ships of the C.P.R., C.N.R. and Union Steamship Lines, who last month voted to strike in support of demands for a $30 a month pay increase and a 25-cent-an-hour boost for overtime work, today are voting on a new offer from the three companies.

The new offer would provide the seamen with a monthly increase of $13.87 and 11 cents extra for overtime.

Result of the current balloting is not expected to be known until late next week.

Wading Pool Planned For Esquimalt

A wading pool for children may soon be constructed in Esquimalt Memorial Park, it was announced today by Councillor John Carey, chairman of the Esquimalt Celebrations Association.

The councillor said $400 had been raised by the recent Esquimalt May Day celebration and it was the intention of the association to use the money to provide recreational facilities for youngsters of the district.

The Esquimalt Boxing Club will also benefit from the celebration proceeds.

Affairs of this year's May event were wound up at an association meeting. Membership contest prizes went to Mrs. C. P. Connor, 461 Admirals Road, first; Helen Whalen, 1280 Park Terrace, second, and Helen Pearce, 2879 Gorge View, third.

'Dokkies' Plan Ceremonial Here

Over 70 U.S. and Canadian "Dokkies," as well as a large delegation of up-island members will attend the annual international ceremonial of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorasan to open Saturday in the Knights of Pythias Hall, 723 Cormorant Street.

The meeting will bring together "Dokkies" from Seattle, Bellingham, Portland, Olympia, Port Angeles, Vancouver and island centres. A large class of tyros will be given the initiatory degree and conducted across the burning sands by the Divan of Tel E. Mahuta Temple 153 of Victoria.

The meeting this year is being held in honor of George W. Allison of Victoria, Royal Prince and Past Imperial Adool, who organized the local temple over 40 years ago.

Carroll Remanded

Dennis J. Carroll, 21, charged with assaulting Beatrice Kamis, Island Taid driver, and occasioning her grievous bodily harm, was remanded to June 8 for trial in city police court today. Edwin Popham appeared as his counsel.

Heavy Terms For Espionage On Yugoslavia

BELGRADE (AP)—A Yugoslav military tribunal dealt out stiff prison sentences today to four persons convicted of spying for Czechoslovakia and the Russian-led Cominform.

In a two-day trial, all four pleaded guilty to espionage charges.

The spy trial emphasized the increasing bitterness of the three-year-old feud between Premier Marshal Tito and the Soviet Balkan satellites.

The defendants and their sentences:

1. Ljudevic Kovac, 56, Yugoslav army captain, sentenced to 20 years at hard labor.

2. Jaroslav Nemet, 26, secretary to the Czech military attaché in Belgrade, sentenced to 13 years.

3. M's. Barbara Kovac, 59, Czech-born wife of the first defendant, three years.

4. Bedrich Glass, 43, also Czech-born, six years.

Present Play In Outdoor Theatre

QUALICUM—Toga-clad students of Qualicum College here today staged the second performance of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" on an outdoor-Roman-type amphitheatre, believed to be the only one of its kind in B.C. The play opened Thursday before a large audience.

Teachers and students built the outdoor theatre after six months' work. Driving forces behind the theatre were headmaster Robert Knight and teacher Ian Thorne, who had theatrical training at London Guildhall School of Drama.

Victoria Diocese Plans Congress

DUNCAN—Approximately 2000 people will attend the fifth Eucharistic Congress for the Victoria Roman Catholic Diocese to be held Sunday at St. Edward's Church and Congress Park, Festubert Street.

Ceremonies will begin with pontifical high mass in the open at 10.30, conducted by Bishop James M. Hill of Victoria and with a sermon by Rev. A. J. MacDonald.

Procession and benediction will be at 2.30, with a sermon by Bishop Martin M. Johnson of Nelson.

Detachments of the navy, army and air force will take part in the procession with Ukrainians, Poles, Chinese and Indians wearing their national costumes.

School Speaker

J. M. Ewing, principal of Victoria College, will deliver an address tomorrow at annual Speech Day—ceremonies at University School.

Ceremonies open at 11. Sports events will begin at 2.15.
